Guilty in Missouri Ship Case

Captain of Battleship Admits Negligence And Neglect of Duty On Three Charges

By Harry Nash

NORFOLK, Va., March 30 —(AP)— Capt. William D. Brown threw himself on the mercy of a Navy court martial today by pleading guilty to negligence and neglect of duty in the grounding of the battleship Missouri.

"I am not convinced with the legal technicalities of my position," the handsome 47-year-old former skipper told the court. "I only recognize that I was responsible for the safe navigation of the ship. My orders put the ship aground."

Brown's statement to the court at the opening of his trial was a dramatic re-statement of his "I and I alone am responsible" admission to the court of inquiry that recommended the general court martial for the captain and two of his officers.

His statement accepting sole responsibility amounted to an apology for his initial attitude after the grounding. . . That he felt deserted on the bridge of his ship insofar as aid and advice from his team of officers was concerned.

A Mental Shock

"The mental shock which accompanied the grounding, the nervous strain placed upon me in the salvage operations and my resulting weakened physical condion unfortunately militated against clear thinking as regards my personal position," he said.

". . . needless to say I am sorry that clarity of thought and purpose was not achieved earlier. . . . I very much regret the harm that has been done to others by the grounding of the ship."

Brown, who commanded the Big Mo when she ran aground on a Chesapeake bay shoal January 17, pleaded guilty to each of three charges and four specifications.

The action of the former skipper of the 45,000-ton battleship came shortly after he was arraigned before a general court martial convened to try him on the charges.

Several minutes earlier he had stood before the court, composed of four rear admirals and three captains, and heard the judge advocate read these charges:

(1) "Through negligence suffering a vessel of the Navy to be stranded."

(2) "Through negligence suffering a vessel of the Navy to be hazarded."

(3) "Neglect of duty."

Took Responsibility

The 47-year-old officer, who was relieved as commanding officer of the Missouri shortly after the vessel was refloated Feb. 1, had told a naval court of inquiry which investigated the grounding that "I and I alone bear the sole responsibility" for the accident.

Brown had become skipper of the nation's only active battleship last December. The Missouri was the first capital ship he had commanded and the first ship of any type he had skippered since 1943.

The charges against Brown were drawn by Rear Adm. Allan E. Smith, who had convened the court of inquiry and who ordered Brown and two other officers of the Missouri to stand trial by general courts martial. Smith is commander of the Atlantic fleet cruiser force.

The other court martial defendants are Cmdr. John R. Millett, the Big Mo's former operations officer, and Lt. Cmdr. Frank G. Morris, former navigator. Millett is charged with neglect of duty and through negligence suffering a vessel of the Navy to be hazarded. Morris is charged with neglect of duty and culpable inefficiency in the performance of duty.

Seven Specifications

Seven specifications were drawn to support the charges against Brown. Three of these, under the first charge, allege that he:

(1) Failed to exercise proper care in navigating the Missouri, "despite warnings by the navigator," while the vessel was trying to run a secret electronic range between the main ship channel and the shoal on which she grounded.

(2) Failed to inform himself of the number, location and characteristics of buoys marking the range, and caused a course to be

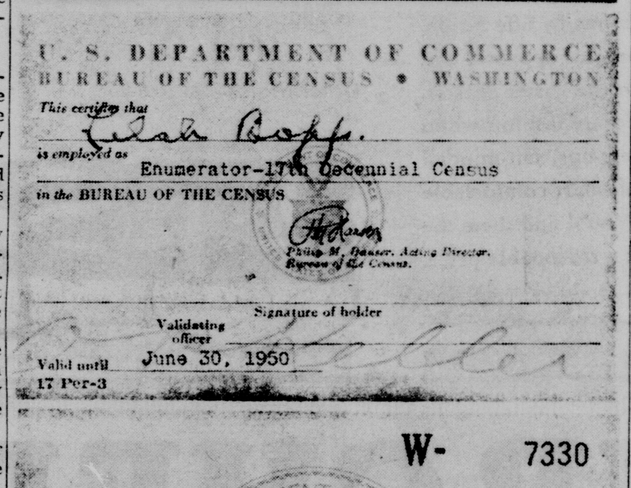
Census Enumerator Ready for Work



Mrs. Leo A. Bopp, 1216 Liberty Park boulevard, one of the Sedalia-Pettis county enumerators, is shown with one of the portfolios. The cover of red, white and blue makes it possible there will be no mistaking an "official enumerator" calling at your door. In addition the enumerator carries a small, yellow identification card with his or her name on it. Unless the enumerator carries both portfolio and "ID" card (shown below), he or she is not to be regarded as a bona fide enumerator, O. P. Keller, area census supervisor of Springfield, states. Coin Tossed Chipped One of Dancer's Teeth

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—(AP)—Dancer Carol Vaughn doesn't think much of tossing coins to entertainers.

She said someone chipped one of her teeth with a thrown 50-cent piece while she was doing a back bend.

So yesterday she sued the Associated Home Builders, at whose banquet she was dancing, for $1,500 damages.

Dr. Pete Siegel In St. Louis Hospital

Dr. Pete Siegel, of Smithton, is a patient at St. Luke's hospital in St. Louis. Dr. Siegel, who went to St. Louis to attend the Medical Conference being held there, became ill shortly after his arrival there, was confined to his hotel room for two days and then was taken to the hospital.

Sedalia Girl is Introduced on Television to MMM Group

Miss Patricia Quinn, daughter of Mrs. Joseph S. Quinn, 917½ West Third street, an anesthetist at the City hospital in St. Louis, was introduced on the color television at the Medical Conference held the past several days in St. Louis, according to Dr. A. L. Walter, who attended the meeting.

Miss Quinn was on of the anesthetists assisting at an operation being televised from the City hospital to the Gold Room at the Jefferson hotel for the Medical Conference.

Dr. Walter stated that most of the meeting was conducted by color television, which came through amazingly well. Now and then, he said, there was a change to black and white, to show the contrast. In addition to the showing of the surgery a clinic was also televised in which the patients were shown in various conditions and treatments given.

While at the meeting Dr. Walter also saw Miss Betty Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Reid, 410 Dal-Whi-Mo court, technician at St. John's hospital, and later saw Miss Quinn at City hospital where he had been an interne. Dr. Walter went to the hospital to attend the open house for internes.

Other physicians from here who went to St. Louis to attend the medical conference were Dr. A. J. Cambell and Dr. Pete Seigel.

Census Takers Start Work On Saturday

Not Merely For Population, But How People Live

Saturday the 17th decennial (every 10 years) census of the United States will get underway. Thirty-four men and women will begin early Saturday morning April 1, calling upon the citizens in Pettis county, and 278 more enumerators will be working in the other ten counties of the sixth congressional district.

The sixth district enumerators number is just a comparison as to how many men and women will be working from April 1 until not later than April 30, checking on how many people live in these United States and getting information on the country's agriculture.

Census-taking isn't merely a population counting. It is also a rather close examination of the living standards of the nation, especially as to housing, education, and the way its people make their living.

Going Into Farm Activities

Wherever possible the urban and non-farm population will be contacted first hand. The agriculture census is such an exhaustive study that each farm will receive a blank which is to be filled out by the farmer and should he need any help, he can ask for it when the enumerator calls at his farm for the report. The government is going more exhaustively into the farm activities and economy.

A total of 334 questions will be asked the farmer about his agriculture business in addition to the regular census which will be asked every person speaking for a household. Mr. Farmer will report on the crops he's raised, the type of stock bought and sold and what he made or lost on these transactions. As an example he'll be asked about the irrigation, dairy, nursery products, the equipment and type he uses and whether he owns, rents or merely is operating the place for somebody else.

Two General Lines

Questions of the urban and non-farmer run along two general lines: Household and personal background. The enumerator is equipped with a formidable looking green-colored questionnaire, each which will cover the census on 12 households and up to 30 persons.

As to housing, the spokesman for each household will be asked 26 questions, such as what sort of fuels they use, whether there is a radio or television set, or does it have a kitchen sink and if so is it shared with somebody else?

The question which has brought about much comment, but isn't regarded as personal will be asked of every fifth person "How much money did you make last year?" This person will also be asked about twenty additional questions and every twenty-seventh person will be asked a few more questions.

Special Form

As to the question on income, there has been such a cry over that one, the government has prepared a special printed form which may be filled out and mailed direct to Washington. Thus this question is kept strictly confidential.

Other questions to be asked are a little puzzling, more so than the one about the income. An example, "What were you doing last week, working, keeping house or something else?" "Did you do any work at all last week, not counting work around the house?" and should the answer to the last one be "No," then "Were you looking for work?"

Kept Confidential

The census questions are all kept confidential and a paragraph at the top of each form says such. It adds, "The census report cannot be used for purposes of taxation, investigation or regulation." Any person over 18 who refuses to answer the questions can be fined as much as $100, sentenced to jail for 60 days, or both.

False answers can be punishable by a $500 fine, a year in jail, or both. For babbling information obtained, an enumerator can be given a stiffer fine and jail sentence.

Enumerators, according to a census office spokesman should average $8.00 per day. They can work by day or night and on any day of the week for as many hours as they desire.

Eighteen enumerators will take the census in Sedalia and sixteen will work in the county. As one enumerator finishes his or her district she may be assigned into another district to assist that enumerator to complete the census.

National Hearing Week May 7-14

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—President Truman urged every American today to cooperate in the observance of "National Hearing Week" May 7-14.

He said in a letter to the American Hearing Society that "your fine organization has worked unceasingly to combat a situation in which some fifteen million people in this country have impaired hearing."

The 30-year old society chose for its 1950 theme: "Good hearing must be protected."

Address From F. F. Wesner To Democrats

Speaker In Appeal For A Business Administration

The Democratic party conducted a political rally at Washington school Wednesday night with Fred F. Wesner delivering the prinicpal talk. Tonight at 8:00 o'clock, the Democrats will round out their ward meetings by holding one at Broadway school, at which time John C. McCloskey, will give the main talk.

In Mr. Wesner's talk, he pointed out that the city of Sedalia is a $17,000,000 corporation and that the citizens of this city are the stockholders, and further stated that the citizens are entitled to have a man to head the corporation who is a mature and seasoned business man and who has been a success in his own endeavors and business.

The speaker related that no man should be elected mayor of this city except a man who can, will and has the ability to be a servant of the people. He pointed out that Mr. Askew is such a man, by saying he has a business in this city and owns property here and that prosperity or otherwise experience of that business depends upon the advancement, standing, or otherwise of the city of Sedalia, as one of the principal cities of this state.

Commends Administration

The attorney said Mr. Askew is deeply imbeded as a citizen of this city with its interest first in mind and first to serve. Mr. Wesner asserted that over the period of the past four years, Sedalians have experienced and seen in operation the best city administration this city has ever enjoyed, and that there have been more accomplishments for the average citizen than any other like period of time.

Mr. Wesner stated that in his opinion the accomplishments of the present administration are so outstanding (as compared to the past) that certainly they should be valuable enough to all citizens, regardless of politics, to not give them up.

G. O. Hawley was chairman and introduced the Democratic candidates and a number of other persons in the audience, who gave brief talks.

After the speaking, refreshments were served to a large crowd.

Democrats Conclude Ward Meetings Tonight

The Democrats will conclude their ward meetings tonight at 8:00 o'clock, with a political rally being held at Broadway school, at which time John C. McCloskey will give the principal talk.

Leo J. Coxon will have charge of the meeting and will introduce the speaker, and Democratic candidates, seeking election on April 4. Other Democrats are expected to be on hand to give brief talks.

Following the meeting, refreshments will be served.

Nine Patients, Some Strapped To Beds, Dead

Perish in Fire That Sweeps Wing of Private Sanatorium

PHILADELPHIA, March 30 —(AP)—Police Chief Andrew J. White of Springfield township and Nicholas Verna of Upper Darby, Pa., a patient at the Belle Vista sanatorium, admitting setting the fire in the basement of the institution. White said Verna had once served a prison term following a conviction for arson.

PHILADELPHIA, March 30—(AP)—Nine male patients — some strapped to concrete bunks and others trapped in barred and bolted rooms — perished last night in a fire which raged through one wing of a suburban private sanatorium.

Two firemen, a nurse and at least 80 other patients, men and women, were injured or overcome by smoke as flames swept from basement to upper rooms of a section of the 47-year-old Belle Vista sanatorium.

The sanatorium is given over to treatment of convalescent, senile, nervous and mental cases.

Rescuers ripped thick wire mesh from windows in order to lead scores of patients — some uncomprehending and hysterical — to safety.

Walter Rohrbach, one of the firemen, said he rescued 12 women patients, carrying them down ladders one at a time.

Sickening

"It was sickening," he said. "Some were screaming. Some were standing around with passive, blank looks — not understanding what was going on — or so scared they had no emotions."

Authorities said some of the male patients who died were fastened to bunks upon which they had lain without mattresses and only a few blankets. A few wore strait-jackets.

Lt. John Jellison of the Springfield township police, expressed belief the fire might have been incendiary. "It looks as if it might have been started by someone, probably by a patient," he said.

A joint investigation was begun immediately by state police, local police and the fire marshal's department.

Last night's fire at Belle Vista, which lies on the northwestern edge of Philadelphia, in Springfield township, Montgomery county, was the third at the sanatorium in 14 months.

Started in Basement

It broke out shortly after 10 p. m. (EST) yesterday in the basement of the two-story, part wooden and part stone building. Within a matter of moments after its discovery confusion was rampant inside. Only the swift action of rescuers and the resourcefulness of nurses and other members of the staff prevented sheer panic.

As it was, patients, choking and gasping for air as smoke filled the rooms and corridors, shouted and screamed for help while they sought to throw off their shackles. Some raced to windows only to find them heavily screened. Others thumped on massive doors — locked on the outside.

A number of these terrified patients injured themselves in their efforts to be free.

Led Four Women Out

Frank Buccino, a 40-year old motorist who joined in the rescue, said: "I ran into the building and

Snow Flurries In East, Hot In California

Summer-Winter Crowd Spring Out Of Weather Picture

By the Associated Press

Winter and summer crowded spring out of the nation's weather picture today.

The summery scene:

Thousands flocked to the beaches in Southern California yesterday as the mercury steamed up to near 90 above. It was 86 at Los Angeles, the hottest day of the year. Long Beach basked in a mid-summer 88 and Santa Monica's high was 87.

It was hot in Miami, too, a record 86 for the date. Miami Beach was two degrees warmer and the high in the Miami area was 89 at the International Airport.

The country's top mark was 91 at Phoenix and Yuma, Ariz.

Winter's setting:

A few snow flurries fell in Atlanta early today and last night, melting as they hit the ground.

Freezing Line

A freezing line extended over the northern and central tier of states from the Rockies to the North Atlantic states. The mercury dropped to near zero in some parts of Michigan, Wisconsin and North Dakota. Light snow fell in parts of the northeastern states.

Some moderation in the cold weather was expected over most of the midwest today. But the freezing temperatures were due to remain over the northeastern region for another 24 hours.

The chilly weather appeared to have eased the flood danger in upstate New York. Flood waters receded after having spilled over thousands of acres of farm land. The hardest hit area was south of Rochester, where the Genesee river overflowed its banks. Dozens of families had been evacuated from residential areas south of Rochester.

City-wide GOP Meeting Friday

A city wide Republican meeting will be held in the Sedalia Armory, Friday night at 7:30 o'clock, with Herb E. Studer, Republican candidate for mayor, Carl J. Meyer, Republican candidate for chief of police, and George H. Miller, Republican city chairman, to be the principal speakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Remington Schuyler, of Missouri Valley College, Marshall, entertainers will give costume entertainment.

Mr. Studer will discuss his program for development and progress of the city of Sedalia, and will particularly discuss his proposal for a city planned commission.

The candidate for mayor will also discuss his plans for the extension of street lighting in residential areas, sewers, and the improvements of streets and alleys.

After the talks, refreshments will be served.

Today And Tomorrow Left to File State Income Report

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30—(AP)—Today and tomorrow—that's all the time you have left to file your state income tax report.

T. R. Allen, state income tax supervisor, warned today that his men are going to turn over a lot of rocks this year to make sure everyone who should file a return does so. And that the figures they submit are right.

Allen estimated there are at least 75,000 Missourians who don't even bother paying a state income tax. He said he is setting up a new auditing system that will go into operation next month, to check the correctness of reports filed and also ferret out people who are trying to evade the tax.

A new penalty law goes into effect this year. It is based on the same formula as the federal government's—50 per cent if the individual is trying to avoid the tax. For the fellow who has just been negligent the penalty is five per cent a month up to 25 per cent.

Collections this year appear to be about even with a year ago, indicating the state will collect on 1949 incomes about $22,000,000 in taxes, the same as for 1948.

Allen said he has been kept busy the last few days listening to the telephone troubles of taxpayers from all over the state. They give various excuses for needing an extension in time, he said. And where the reason seems proper extra time is granted.

This is the last year you can pay your income tax on a quarterly basis. Next year a new law becomes effective, requiring that the state income tax be paid in one lump sum.

You can avoid a penalty by getting your return in the mail by midnight tomorrow.

Consider Building Defense

House Action Comes After Testimony By Eisenhower More Money Could be Used

By Ruth Cowan

WASHINGTON, March 30 —(AP)— Members of the House Armed Services committee disclosed plans today to add about $647,000,000 to next year's defense budget.

This development followed testimony by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that a half billion dollars more — at a "guess" — could be used to strengthen this country's defenses.

The House next week will begin consideration of a bill which calls for $13,911,127,000 in cash and contract authority for the armed forces in the 12 months starting July 1.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the armed services committee announced that when the bill comes up he will make a "strong speech" pointing out the grave situation confronting the United States now that Russia has the atomic secret.

He said he will call upon the House appropriations committee to sponsor amendments to strengthen this country's armaments. If that group won't do it, he said, he will.

Need Aerial Strength

The bulk of additional funds proposed by Vinson would be used to strengthen the nation's aerial might, with some set aside for protection against an enemy attack from the air.

Eisenhower told a Senate appropriations subcommittee yesterday that U. S. defenses are not as strong a sthey might be. The air force was one arm whose needs he stressed, along with Alaskan defenses, anti-submarine weapons, and industrial mobilization.

While Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla), chairman of the Senate subcommittee, indicated that he thought Eisenhower had failed to prove his case, other lawmakers — including Vinson — said they agreed fully with the wartime commander of allied military forces in Europe.

Eisenhower, now president of Columbia university, was called before the Senate group after stating in a New York speech last week that some phases of defense were falling below the safety level.

Need Arms

He told the lawmakers that much more could be done to strengthen the nation's defenses if changes were made in the way the budget for next year is spent.

While arms are not used offensively in a cold war, he said, not even a cold war can be won without them. And he declared that the stronger America's military might is, the more conciliatory Russia will be.

"War is not a thing to be taken lightly," he said, "and they know it." The general added that the Russians are "too logical and too sensible" to start hostilities now or in the near future.

How Funds Should be Used

Meanwhile, he said, U. S. defense funds should be so used that they insure:

1. A 48-group air force, with 11 or 12 groups in reserve, all equipped with modern planes. Air force officials estimated that would cost an additional $200,000,000. 2. Adequate defenses in Alaska — amounting to a "good reinforced regiment" built up over a three-year period. 3. A strong anti-submarine program. 4. Earnest attention to industrial mobilization.

Senator Thomas took the position that remedies already have been found for the shortcomings mentioned by Eisenhower. He said, for example, that a supplemental budget estimate for Alaska is on the way to congress from the Pentagon.

Thomas concluded that while the general had made an excellent presentation, his New York speech was not "justified" by his testimony.

Pettis Players Elect Board Of Directors

Modelling its constitutional structure on that of successful little theatre groups in Dallas, Tulsa and elsewhere, the Pettis Players elected six members to serve as a board of directors, at their meeting on Wednesday night.

Scott Webber, Mrs. William Ward, Frank F. Evans, Bob Younger, W. E. Bruce and Otis Wiley were chosen to serve as directors for the fiscal year ending September 1st, with Maurice F. Hogan, president of the Pettis Players, as chairman of the board.

Meet Sunday Afternoon

The new board will meet Sunday afternoon and fill the appointive offices, such as publicity chairman, a play selection committee, and a director and assistant director for the club's next production. "The Male Animal," a three-act comedy by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent, has been selected to be presented the first week in June. Preferences expressed by the members will be the basis of the board of directors' selections for these offices, as well as of property, stage management, costume and wardrobe, make-up and stage settings committees. As soon as a director has been appointed, play readings will be held, open to the membership and persons who become affiliated with the club, and a cast will be chosen on the merit basis.

Plans to incorporate a children's theatre and a radio workshop were also discussed and will be acted upon at a later meeting.

Regular meetings of the Pettis Players are held on the second and fourth Wednesday nights of each month, at Central Business College. Persons interested in theatre arts are invited to attend.

His Good Deed Worth While

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 30.—(AP)—Somewhere, the Santa Fe railroad thinks, John McGowan, one-eyed and 70, is trudging along the tracks, probably wearing a new suit.

Here's the story it told today:

Recently McGowan, a transient, was walking along the tracks when his good eye spotted a broken rail. At almost the same moment, he heard an approaching train.

Running down the track, McGowan frantically waved a warning . Inches from the break, the trai ncame to a halt.

Grateful railroad officials brought McGowan here. They dined him, and got him a room at the best hotel. They bought him a new suit, and slipped $100 into a pocket.

Next day they dropped by, to see if there was anything else McGowan needed. But he was gone, presumably back to the main line.

'Babes in Hollywood'---2

Awkward Age Movietown's Big Bugaboo for Kids

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)— Charges that nine-year-old Lora Lee Michel was "starved" to "keep her small for movie roles" reminded me of the story about a movie mother at a studio casting office with a gangling daughter in tow.

"Isn't she just a little large for her age?" the casting director asked.

"Yes," said the mother, "We haven't been able to stop her from growing but we have kept her mind back."

That's just a story but maybe

MITZI GREEN: She went to the nightclubs and TV.

in some cases of over-zealous parents, dreaming dreams of glory and gold for their offspring and themselves, it isn't so far from the truth.

Bad management of Jackie Coogan's movie fortune resulted in a California state law requiring that a heavy percentage of any child star's income must be put into a trust fund for them.

This has saved more than one Babe in Hollywood from being flat broke and hungry at 14, when the awkward age came along and wiped him off the screen's hall of fame.

But baby stars have such a short professional life—from four

BABY LEROY: He was all washed up at six.

to six years—that great fortunes are an exception.

Let's look at some ex-child stars today:

Jane Withers is happily married and a mother in semi-retirement. Mitzi Green is still working, playing night clubs and TV shows. Bonita Granville is married to millionaire Jack Wrather, is the mother of a year-old daughter, and just starred in one of her husband's movies.

ELIZABETH TAYLOR: She's weathering the storm.

Virginia Weidler, Darryl Hickman, Jane Powell and Dean Stockwell still put on greasepaint. Roddy McDowell is a Los Angeles radio disc jockey.

Few survive the sudden growth and change of the growing pains years.

Mickey Rooney, because of his size, is still a star. Deanna Durbin's career went haywire following two divorces, and a switch from light-hearted heroines to sexy sirens. Judy Garland is still in there pitching, but with occasional flare-ups of temperament and illness blamed on her lack of a normal childhood.

Only Elizabeth Taylor, at the moment, is weathering the storm of young womanhood.

Other kid stars have disappeared from the sound stages. Jackie Searle, Spankie McFarland, Dickie Moore, Baby Peggy Montgomery, Cora Sue Collins and Baby Jane Quigley have long since been forgotten.

Of all the kid sudden fame stories in Hollywood, Baby LeRoy's is the most disheartening for parents who dream of movie riches.

Baby LeRoy was only six months old when he co-starred in a picture with the late W. C. Fields. Six years later he tried a comeback at Universal. His second picture was a flop. A fan magazine headlined it:

"Baby LeRoy Washed Up at 6." He didn't even have a chance to reach the awkward age.

That awkward age is Hollywood's biggest bugaboo for the kids.

They start off great. The public takes their whimsy, cuteness and their tearsome performances to its great big heart. Then nature takes its course and the kids become miniature monsters with crooked teeth and knobby knees.

Before they reach that age bridge, they are natural and unaffected. Then, with the coming of adolescence, they are aware, suddenly, of the camera and the people watching them and even of their own actions. What was once a natural performance now becomes awkward and stiff in self-consciousness.

The audience is another hazard. You get used to seeing a Butch Jenkins as a cute little freckled kid and if he suddenly becomes a head taller and isn't cute any more, you look for a new face. Hollywood puts Jenkins on the shelf.

Having lost both of my legs in combat during the last war, and my mode of transportation being a wheel chair, it is impossible for me to personally solicit many of the voters regarding my candidacy for Police Magistrate on the Democratic ticket in next Tuesday's election.

I am, therefore, taking this means of soliciting your support in the election of April 4th, for which I will be deeply appreciative.

Bakery Goods To Charity

ST. LOUIS, March 30—(AP)—City and charitable institutions here have been given 60,000 pieces of bakery goods valued at about $10,000.

The bakery goods were tied up in Kroger Company warehouses by a truck drivers' strike, and the company made the gift yesterday rather than allow them to go to waste.

The strike by 100 AFL drivers, the refusal of other workers to cross picket lines, has closed several Kroger stores here.

May Cast an Absentee Vote In Tax Election

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30—(AP)—It 's still possible for you to cast an absentee ballot in next Tuesday's gasoline tax election if you are going to be away from your home county on election day.

The old law was that you had to apply for an absentee ballot at least five days before the election. And you couldn't vote at all if you were going to be outside the state election day. That last provision automatically disfranchised a lot of Missourians in Washington unless they came home to vote.

But the last legislature broadened the law so any qualified Missourian can vote from anywhere in the world. And he can apply to his county clerk or election board for an absentee ballot right up to 6 p. m. of the day before the election.

If Sick or Disabled

If sick or disabled, he must send a doctor or a Christian Science practioner along with the application.

Absentee ballots have to be mailed back by election day, with a postmark no later than the election date. They must reach the county clerk or election board by 6 p. m. of the day after the election.

The new law gets its first test next Tuesday when Missouri voters in a special referendum whether to increase the present two cent tax to four cents, with one cent to go for rural roads.

And the most prominent tester will be President Truman. He has announced he will vote from Florida for the tax increase.

up to the second floor. I found I was in the women's ward. I led four women out. Some of them fought me violently and scratched my face."

Fire Marshal Edward H. Chew said the blaze apparently started in the basement laundry from an undetermined clause. It spread to the first floor where the men patients were quartered. He said only the basement was badly damaged.

Suit Against Meat Brokers

KANSAS CITY, March 20—(AP)—A suit for $4,186.50 was filed yesterday in federal district court against two meat brokers by R. C. Grooms, operator of the Western Plaines Horse Meat Company, South Bend, Ill.

The defendants are Meyer Gilgus, Kansas City, and Louis Risken, Minneapolis.

Gilgus and Risken have been named in a complaint filed in Dallas in connection with alleged shipments of horse meat under the guise of beef tenderloin.

Grooms is a licensed dealer in horse meat. The petition filed here does not state the nature of transactions he may have had with Gilgus or Risken.

The petition states Gilgus gave Risken a check for $4,186.50, Risken endorsed the check to Grooms, who then discovered that Gilgus had stopped payment on it. The check was dated Feb. 22.

Tax Begins at Once If Law is Passed

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30—If Missourians approve Gov. Forrest Smith's gasoline tax increase law next Tuesday, the higher tax will be collected the next day.

Attorney General J. E. Taylor advised the revenue department today that under Missouri's constitution the law becomes effective immediately upon approval of the people in the referendum election.

The gas tax collector's office reported that arrangements are being made to start Wednesday collecting four cents on each gallon of gasoline instead of the two cents now collected — if the people give the law a majority vote Tuesday.

'Tis So, States Smith; 'Taint, Opponents Say

That's the Way Gas Tax Campaign Is Developing

By the Associated Press

'Tis so, said the governor.

'Tain't either, said his opponents.

And that was about the way you could sum up today the latest developments in Missouri's gasoline tax compaign.

The issue — whether the present two cent gas tax should be upped to four cents, with one cent for rural roads — comes before the voters in a special referendum election next Tuesday.

Here is what happened last night:

1. Speaking at a Chamber of Commerce meeting in Nevada on the last lap of a statewide campaign, Gov. Forrest Smith repeated his charge that oil interests are making millions out of the present two cent tax. Even with the lowest state tax in the country, he said, gasoline prices in Missouri are as high or higher than in neighboring states.

2. The oil industry fired right back. It said there is no truth to the charge Missouri motorists are being gouged. Sure, gasoline prices dropped a cent a gallon recently — as the governor said — but the oil men said that had nothing to do with the gas tax campaign. Just competitive conditions in the industry.

In Kansas City Today

Today the governor goes to Kansas City for another speech tonight before the South Kansas City Business club. Then he heads back toward Jefferson City after stops at Lexington and his home town of Richmond.

The oil industry spoke through C. C. Divinny of Kansas City, chairman of the Missouri Petroleum Industries committee. He said so long as the voters understand the facts, oil men are willing to leave the issue to them.

He denied the governor's charges that "slush funds" are being raised to fight the proposed law.

He said the industry has spent no money and has not "lifted a finger to influence a vote."

Refused to Dismiss Suit

LOS ANGELES, March 30—(AP)—Was the tall, dark handsome cotton broker trespassing when he took a shower in the blonde, French Marquise's bathroom?

No, said Superior Judge J. A. Smith yesterday as he refused to dismiss the $44,404 damage suit of six-footer Joseph Wade. Wade sued Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hillman for that amount, claiming he cut his hand severely on a broken water faucet while a guest in the Hillmans' Beverly Hills home in 1946.

Hillman is the Chicago department store heir. His wife is the former Lady Inverclyde, once wed to a member of the Cunard steamship family.

The Hillmans' lawyer asked that the suit be dismissed on the ground Wade "had no right whatever," to take a shower bath adjoining the bedroom of the then Marquire de la Begassiere, another Hillman house guest. Wade said his own shower was "inoperative."

Testimony yesterday had Wade wearing only a towel over his shoulders as he made his bloody dash from the bathroom.

Tax Lien Against Drug Store Operator

ST. LOUIS, March 30—(AP)—The state revenue department filed a $40,659 tax lien yesterday against Herman Spivack, operator of a Webster Groves drug store.

Spivack said he has paid the two per cent tax regularly in the full amount.

Baby Sitter, 13, Saves Children As Home Burns

Dumps Four In Yard As She Gets Them Outside

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 30 —(AP)—A 13-year-old baby sitter was credited by firemen Wednesday night with saving four small children when fire destroyed their home.

One of the children—four-year-old Leland Ray Tate—started the blaze while playing with matches in a clothes closet.

Norma Lee Cook, a seventh grader, sobbed as she told police and firemen of the flash fire which leveled Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tate's small four-room home.

"I got them all out but they don't have any clothes or furniture left," she sobbed over and over again. "I can't face their mother and father. I did all I could 'do."

Norma Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cook, said she was placed in charge of Anna Paulette, 6, Leland Ray, Loretta, 3, and Paul Jr. 1, while the parents were at a movie.

"I was in the living room holding Paul Junior on my lap and listening to Anna Paulette read a book called lets go shopping with Peter and Penny," she said. Loretta was lying on a bed in the bed room.

"Suddenly Leland Ray came rushing in and said the house was on fire," Norma Lee continued. "I didn't pay much attention. Then he grabbed me and said again 'the house is on fire."

Norma Lee said she set the baby on a chair, walked into the adjoining bed room and saw the closet blazing.

Tried To Beat Out Blaze

"I grabbed a large towel, wet it and tried to beat out the flames," she said. "I was hysterical I guess. I started screaming. Then I realized the children were in danger."

Norma Lee said she grabbed Loretta by the hand and dragged Paul Jr. off the chair and ran outside.

"After I dumped them in the yard I ran back and picked up Leland Ray and told Anna Paulette to run out of the door ahead of me."

Neighbors arrived and took charge of the four children as the flames ate through the roof of the structure. The entire frame building was enveloped when firemen arrived.

Leland Ray said that he picked up some matches left on the radio, walked into the closet and struck one of them while Norma Lee was reading.

"I said Norma Lee there is a big fire," Leland Ray said. "Then we all run."

Loss was estimated at $2,000.

Shakespeare Popular in Russia

MOSCOW—(AP) — Shakespeare continues to be a popular author among the peoples of Central Asia. The paper "Soviet Art" announced recently that Hamlet had been put on at the Uzbek Theatre of Drama in Tashkent.

In Moscow when the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Moscow Art Theatre was celebrated last fall, a group of actors from Central Asia put on a scene from "The Taming of the Shrew" in their native language.

Shakespeare's plays are presented in many of the national languages of the peoples of the USSR—and of course in Russian also—in Moscow and elsewhere.

In Favor of Ditching Two Minute Rule

Move to Impose Severe Penalties In Basketball

By Will Grimsley

NEW YORK, March 30—(AP)—Basketball may resurrect the center jump after all successful free throws in a move to impose more severe penalties for fouls.

This was indicated at a preliminary report by the National Basketball committee of the United States and Canada, the supreme governing body of the amateur sport.

The committee, meeting here to study proposed changes, said after a lengthy session last night that most of its some 4,000 groups are in favor of discarding the two-minute rule.

Stricter Penalties

But in doing so, the committee reported, the membership is anxious to try to discourage fouling by installing stricter penalties.

Foremost of these proposals are: (7) Avoid giving the ball to the offending team after a successful free throw, (2) use the center jump to decide possession of thes occasions.

The body, made up of representatives from the NCAA, AAU, YMCA, National Federation of high schools and Canadian amateur groups, continued deliberations today.

The committee's report said a survey of its membership showed sentiment in favor of keeping most of the present rules intact. An exception is the two-minute rule, now widely scorned.

Under The Rule

Under the rule, the team which is fouled in the last two minutes of the game retains possession of the ball after a free throw.

The National Association of Coaches recommended yesterday that the two-minute rule be repealed and that the game be returned to the 1944-45 style with uniform regulations and timing for the entire game.

This plan, however, would not impose a sterner penalty on fouling teams since it would enable the offender to get the ball after free thorws that drop into the hoop.

Forrest (Phog) Allen, veteran Kansas Coach, is sponsor of a movement to have the two-minute rule provision prevail for the entire game, thus penalizing a team guilty of fouls.

Captain of CCNY Team Joins Nationwide Tour

CHICAGO, March 30—(AP)—Irwin Dambrot, captain of City College of New York's grand slam basketball team, today joined the collegiate squad which will oppose the Harlem Globetrotters in a nationwide tour of 17 cities.

The first game of the so-called "world series of basketball" will be played at Chicago Stadium Sunday night.

Damrot, a forward, scored 977 points in three years at CCNY, recent National Invitation and NCAA victors.

The Collegiants are coached by Clair Bee of Long Island University, Hank Iba of Oklahoma A. and M., and Ray Meyer of De Paul. The players include Don Rehfeldt, Wisconsin; Kevin O'Shea, Notre Dame; Paul Arizin,, Villanova; Bill Erickson, Illinois; John Pilch, Wyoming; Hal Haskins, Hamline: Bob Cousy,, Holy Cross, and Joe Nelson, Brigham Young.

First Round Results in American Legion Meet

McPHERSON, Kas., March 30—(AP)—It looks like McPherson has a good chance of retaining its National American Legion basketball tournament title.

The Kansas team, defending champion, romped to a 57-44 victory over Niles, Mich., in an opening round game last night. McPherson was ahead 25-20 at halftime and held a 12 point advantage most of the second period. The Kansans have won 33 out of 39 games this season.

In other first round games, Chicago beat Tecumseh, Okla., 71-51; Casselton, N. D., trounced Aberdeen, Idaho, 50-30; Independence, Iowa, defeated Myrtle Beach, S. C., 48-42.

Today's schedule (Central Standard Time):

1 p. m. — McCook, Nebr. vs. Richmond, Ky.

2—Ottawa, Kas., vs. Casselton, N. D.

7:30—Coushatta, La., vs. Independence, Iowa.

8:30—St. George, Utah, vs. McPherson.

Fuse Burned Out

The fire companies were called to the Lamy Manufacturing Co., Pacific street and Osage avenue, where a fuse burned out in a transformer outside the building. No damage resulted. The alarm was received at 1:00 o'clock and was the 128th run of the year.

Training Camp Briefs On Both League Circuits

By the Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 30—(AP)—Eddie Stanky, fiery little second baseman of the New York Giants, is expected to be back in the lineup within a couple of days following a minor operation.

New York Yankees

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 30—(AP)—It is becoming doubtful whether old reliable Tommy Henrich will be at first base for the New York Yankees when the season opens.

The rugged veteran proved last season that he recuperates quickly from ailments, but many of his teammates are wondering how long Henrich will be out this time with a bad knee. It is taking plenty of time to respond to treatment.

Brooklyn Dodgers

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 30—(AP)—Rex Barney, a pitcher of great promise but equally great lack of control, will be relegated to the "B" squad when the Brooklyn Dodgers break camp Saturday.

The Dodgers have been very patient with the sometimes brilliant Barney, but Rex just can't seem to find the plate often enough with his curve ball. Manager Burt Shotton says the hurler needs the work he'll get with the "B" outfit.

Boston Braves

BRADENTON, Fla., March 30—(AP)—Johnny Sain who has pitched 12 scoreless innings — three at a time — for Boston's Braves, will go five today when the Tribe plays the St. Louis Cardinals here. Vern Bickford, the club's number three starter and number two righthander, probably will twirl the last four against the Redbirds.

Cincinnati Reds

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 30—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, jubilant over their seventh straight victory in the Grapefruit league, came here today to take on the world champion New York Yankees.

Manager Luke Sewell was happy, too, over the pitching of his two young lefthanders — Kent Peterson and Harry Perkowski. The Braves got two hits off Peterson and an unearned run in five innings. Perkowski yielded one hit.

Cleveland Indians

TUCSON, Ariz., March 30—(AP)—Just about all doubts about the ability of big Luke Easter, Cleveland outfielder, to hit big league pitching were laid to rest today.

Luscious Luke, the former San Diego batting ace, drove out his fifth homer of the exhibition season yesterday as the Tribe defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6.

Easter, who also had a single in four trips to the plate, now is tied for club homer honors with Larry Doby.

Detroit Tigers

LAKELAND, Fla., March 30—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers had an off-day in their exhibition schedule today after trouncing the Washington Senators 9-3 yesterday. Outfielder Johnny Groth led the attack by slamming out five hits in five times at bat.

Chicago Cubs

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 30—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs have rejected the New York Giants' bid for Phil Cavaretta, veteran first baseman. Mgrs. Frankie Frisch and Leo Durocher conferred yesterday after which Frisch said nothing doing. Cavaretta, who has played 17 years with the Cubs, starred in yesterday's 5-3 triumph over the Giants. He smashed a ninth inning homer and also had a single and double and registered 15 putouts.

Philadelphia Phillies

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 30—(AP)—Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Philadelphia Phillies wore a smile that was almost audible today.

Curt Simmons, the bonus baby the Phils banked on — with disappointment the past several seasons — apparently was ready to step into a regular starting berth as a winner.

Simmons hurled six innings against the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday and after an uncertain start, the twenty year old lefty held the Red Birds in the palm of his hand. He walked only one and struck out four.

Philadelphia Athletics

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., — Hank Wyse did a pretty fair job of convincing Manager Connie Mack he is worth more than the $5,000 offered by the Philadelphia Athletics in his first starting assignment.

Wyse went the first three innings against the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday and departed with the score 4-2 in his favor after yielding 4 hits, walking two and striking out four.

St. Louis Browns

YUMA, Ariz. March 30—The St. Louis Browns will return to Burbank, Calif. for their spring training in 1952 as well as next year.

They began training at Burbank last season.

St. Louis Cardinals

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 30—Fred Saigh, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, says negotiations between the Redbirds and the Boston Braves are stalled because the Braves manager Billy Southworth insists on getting a first line pitcher.

The Cardinals want a utility infielder from Boston to understudy Marty Marion and Red Schoendienst.

Chicago And New York Tie In Fights

Intercity Meet Closed With an 8-8 Deadlock

CHICAGO, March 30—(AP)—Chicago's Golden Glovers flashed what little knockout punch there was, but still had to settle for a third straight tie with New York in the 23rd intercity meet before 15,286 at the Chicago Stadium last night.

The evening's closing bout, a toe-to-toe lightheavy weight thriller won by New York's John Boutilier, a Boston university honor student, fashioned the 8-8 deadlock.

Although two of the 16 bouts ended in knockouts, Boutilier's win over the wild swinging Jesse Brown, Toledo glass plant worker, most electrified the crowd.

Boutilier, son of a former National AAU 160-pound champion, staved off the bull-like rushes of Brown for a close decision. Both battlers were so exhausted at the final bell in the three-round scrap they could hardly stand.

One of the knockouts came in a title bout as Chicago's 135-lb. champion, Jim Burroughs, an army corporal from Camp Campbell, Ky., floored New York's Tom Davis in 2:30 of the first round.

Another Kayo

The other kayo was registered in the 175-pound alternate bout, with Chicago's Herb Moore chilling Dosons Oliver, 1949 AAU and all-navy champion, in the third and final round.

The eight title bouts were evenly divided, but New York won both the alternate and championship heavyweight matches as Chicago's knockout specialist, Earl Sudduth, was sidelined by illness.

Sudduth, who won the Chicago heavyweight crown with four one round knockouts, suffered an attack of influenza several days ago and physicians turned him down at yesterday's weigh-in.

In Sudduth's place, Kirby Seals Los Angeles Negro, dropped a lack luster decision to New York champion Norvel Lee, who had finesse but little steam in his punches.

The alternate heavyweight bout resulted in a decision for New York's Vince Bambino over Van Leonard in a pier six brawl.

Pitchers Troubled With Arms

Hal Newhouser And Sid Hudson See Little Action

By The Associated Press

Sore pitching arms are pretty commonplace in major league spring training campaigns, but considerable importance was attached today to the cases of Detroit's Hal Newhouser and Washington's Sid Hudson.

Newhouser, the high-salaried southpaw, has seen mound duty for only two innings during the Citrus Circuit campaign. Manager Red Rolfe is at a loss to understand what is causing the trouble. And Hudson's pitching future is in jeopardy.

Just last Tuesday, Newhouser had to give up hurling batting practice for a game with the Washington Senators. The ace left-hander, after tossing a dozen balls, retired with the remark, "My arm hurts."

Big Question Mark

Jack Homel, Detroit's trainer, can't find any muscular trouble.

Hal made his lone exhibition game showing March 14 against the New York Yankees.

Rolfe, who said Newhouser doesn't seem to be worried, doesn't know what to make of it. "It's a strange thing and it could be serious, but I just don't see how he could have hurt his arm.

As if Washington's Senators, last in the 1949 American League race, didn't have enough problems, it now looks as if Hudson's pitching days may be over.

The trouble dates back to a shoulder injury Sid suffered early in 1947. A recurrence of it bobbed up two days ago when he had to give up during a game lost to Birmingham, 12-11.

And just to add to Washington's woes, its star pitcher, Rae Scarborough, took another pasting yesterday as the Senators lost to detroit, 9-3.

231 Grapplers to AAU Championships

HEMSTEAD, N. Y., March 30—(AP)—The Iowa State Teachers, winners of the National Collegiate wrestling crown last week, defends its National A. A. U. team championship beginning tomorrow at Hofstra College.

A record entry list of 231 grapplers from 31 colleges, clubs and YMCA's in 22 states will go to work on three mats in the preliminary action leading up to Saturday's finals.

Eight champions from last year's AAU meet will be back, including five from Iowa State Teachers. Iowa State landed three championships in the NCAA finals last Saturday at Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Other school entered included Nebraska and Oklahoma A. and M.

Sedalia Legion Team To Start Training

Twenty-six boys have been registered for the Junior American Legion Post 16 team, and more are expected to join the team, because at the last meeting when the boys registered, several of last year's players failed to show up. as did boys who played in the Boys' League.

Weather permitting, the team will have its first workout this Saturday afternoon at Liberty Park. Pitchers and catchers are to report at 1:00 p. m. and the others are to be on hand by 2:00 o'clock.

Any boy wishing a tryout can register at the Liberty Park, and are to bring gloves and wear old clothing, because there will be sliding lessons.

Only pitchers are to bring ball shoes. The remainder of the players reporting may show up in tennis or gym shoes.

Injury of Player Weakens Hockey Team

DETROIT, March 30—(AP)—Absence of the injured Gordie Howe cast the Detroit Red Wings in the underdog role today as they got set for their second Stanley Cup semi-finals hockey game with Toronto's Maple Leafs tonight.

Howe, who suffered a severe head injury during Tuesday night's opening game between the clubs, was reported showing more improvement at Harper hospital.

Spokesmen for the Detroit team said the 21-year old Howe had made considerable progress following an emergency brain operation early Wednesday morning.

The operation relieved pressure which physicians had described as the major threat to the young hockey player's life. He also suffered a nose fracture, cheek fracture and eye lacerations.

COLUMN

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK—(AP)—How do you turn off a milkman?

There must be a way, but in 13 days, two hours and 12 minutes I haven't figured out how to do it. It has been exactly that long since my wife left me on a three-week visit to relatives in Texas.

"It's the first time you've had the apartment all to yourself in ten years," said Frances. "Have fun, poor thing."

The last thing I remember her saying was, "You don't have to worry about the milkman. Just tell him to stop delivery."

I have — about 12 times, including once when I took some checkers and spelled out in the doorway: "No milk." It hasn't worked. Nothing's worked. I even started delivering it back to him each night, but each morning there were just two bottles instead of one.

Can't Turn off Cows

I suppose he finds it impossible to turn off his cows and is just passing his problem on to me. I've been relaying it to the refrigerator, but it's full now. So am I — Grade A and pasteurized up to my ears.

It's a funny thing about milk. You can't even give it away. If you go up to a strange mother with two bottles in your hands and say, "Please, lady, take this milk," she starts backing off. She thinks you have a delusion you are Napoleon playing supermarket.

The worst thing about my ever-flowing milkman is that when Frances comes home and looks in the refrigerator, she'll say, "Well, Rover, couldn't you at least tell the man to stop delivering milk?"

And she'll tell him once to stop, and he'll stop. He'll probably even settle by taking four bottles back.

Man Just a Myth

Such is the authority of wives, and the futility of husbands.

As a matter of fact everything about my period of enforced bachelorhood has convinced me that a man can't really run a home by himself. He can only run it down. The man-about-the-house is just a myth.

As soon as a wife leaves, the place starts falling apart at the seams. Pants get out of press, shirts won't go to the laundry, light bulbs go out while you're reading the evening paper, rain comes in the window and runs onto the rug, you run out of razor blades, your shoestrings break and suspender buttons pop off like mad.

And of 14,000,000 men in the last war I suppose I was the only one who never learned to sew on a button. I always thought that was for first lieutenants.

Could Cook

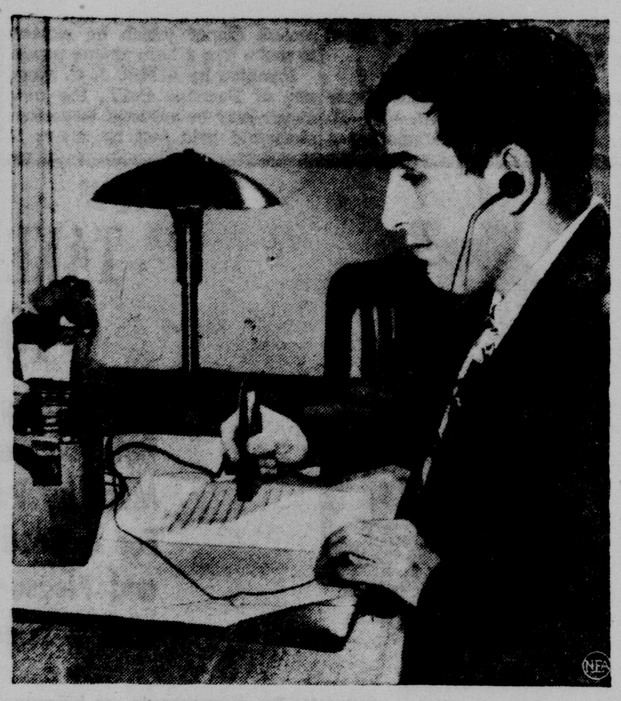
The most shattering blow to my pride has been my experience in the kitchen. If there was one thing I could do as a Boy Scout it was to whip up a batch of bacon and eggs.

But what has happened to eggs over the years? They cook up sentimental on one side now and cynical on the other. Every one I put in the pan ended up looking like an oyster on top and a mess of cinders on the bottom.

Of course, I could hard boil them, but there's a water shortage on and I don't want neighbors going around whispering I'm unpatriotic.

The dish I've had the best luck with so far is raw marshmallows. You eat all you want, and then spend an hour brushing the powdered sugar off your vest. But after three evenings a diet of straight marshmallows begins to lose some of its glamor.

Wives are habit forming, but there's no better habit for a fellow with ten thumbs. I'll be glad when mine gets back.



MIRACLE "READING" PENCIL—The blind can "read" an ordinary book or any printed matter using this new electronic pencil demonstrated at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, by James Fika. Developed by the National Research Council, the pencil scans print with a beam of light, which is converted into "readable" sound signals by means of a photoelectric call. Researchers are working now on a model which will actually pronounce the letters.

You can see America in a jiffy, slightly condensed but fairly authentic, by attending the fair in Osaka, Japan. Here are some of the famous U. S. landmarks which the ingenious Japanese built to give fair visitors a peek at their conquerors' homeland. Though geography may suffer a little (for example, looking over Independence Hall to see the Capitol), the architecture comes through nicely.

Two Fire Runs Early Today

The fire companies up to 7:47 o'clock this morning have made 127 runs for the year, more than a fire run a day. At the above time they were called to the farm residence of Richard Bohlken, just inside the city limits on North Highway 65.

A gasoline stove had flared up and before the companies arrived, Mrs. Bohlken had carried the stove outside the house. No damage resulted.

Fire of undetermined origin did approximately $1,000 damage to the barn and contents of Frank Adams, 719 West Benton street, about 3:31 o'clock this morning. The barn was practically destroyed and a cow, horse, calf and over 60 chickens were lost in the flames.

The fire had gained considerable headway before it was discovered.

Insurance Co. has Liberalized Regulations, Prudential Says

Liberalized regulations making life insurance available to many people who previously would have been rejected because of physical impairments, were announced today by the Prudential Insurance Co. The new underwriting policy extends acceptability to cover even many whose life expectancy may be no more than half that of the average person.

In announcing its new practice, the company points out that heretofore many sufferers from certain types of heart trouble and chronic asthmas, duodenal ulcers, abnormal blood pressure and other ailments have been automatically classified as "uninsurable." It is now felt that the effect of many of these more severe characteristics can be meacured from an actuarial standpoint and accordingly, two new classes of risks have been established.

Liberalizing Practices

According to Hugo M. Sparn, manager of the company's Sedalia district office, the Prudential is simultaneously liberalizing its general underwriting practices. Approximately 100 deviations from normal physical condition hereafter will be considered less important in determining insurability. This has been made possible, he says, through the "advances in the recognition and care of disease" which have taken place in the recent past.

"By liberalizing its underwriting, the company has made insurance protection available to a past new group of men and women," Mr. Sparn said today. "Thanks to medical science and the new drugs and treatments it has uncovered, we're now able to revise our appraisal of certain illnesses and their effects on the longevity of an applicant.

"In establishing these new classes of risk we feel that we are performing a vital service. No man realizes the need for life insurance more than the man who has discovered he is somewhat below par physically. I'm glad that we now are in a position to offer him an insurance program.

Much Waiting Eliminated

"The same is true of the man who has just come through a siege of acute illness. Realizing what a narrow squeak he's had, he is eager to provide his dependents with adequate life insurance. But we have felt we had to make sure he was fully recovered, so we have made such a person wait a couple of months to a year, or even longer, before we would accept his application for insurance. Under the liberalized rules much of this waiting has been eliminated, for we realize that medical science has advanced to such a degree that in the case of most diseases, complete recovery is almost certain much sooner than heretofore.

"I expect that Prudential's new regulations will result in a marked increase in the volume of life insurance written not only in Sedalia but throughout the country."

Two Sedalians With The Navy

Two Sedalia, Mo., men are serving with the Navy, one aboard a ship with the Atlantic Fleet, the other in London, England.

Harry Moffatt, storekeeper third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Moffatt of 1207 East Fourth street, is serving aboard the landing ship USS 983.

Harold D. Miller, seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Miller of 901 East Eleventh street, recently arrived in London, England, for duty at the headquarters of Commander in Chief, Naval Forces, Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean.

For Miller, duty in the heart of the British Commonwealth spells an opportunity of a lifetime to visit the showplaces of the Old World. All parts of the British Isles are within easy reach for week-end liberties.

Leave parties to the Continent are also frequent and will permit him to visit many of the countries and famous cities of Europe.

Moffatt, who entered the Naval service, June 23, 1943, attended Martha Letts High School.

MMA Program For Free Care

ST. LOUIS, March 30—(AP)—The Missouri State Medical Association has launched a program to provide free medical care for needy persons in areas where such services are inadequate.

Under the plan, approved yesterday by the association's house of delegates, the ten members of the association's council would solicit the help of member doctors in their districts in providing such medical care.

The plan would be effective mainly in rural areas and in small towns. Details of the plan, proposed by Dr. Buford G. Hamilton, state director of health, have not been worked out. The house of delegates congratulated Dr. Hamilton on the proposal.

Before closing its four-day annual convention yesterday, the association went on record against a package health care program sought by a national steel industry group representing management and labor.

CORRECTION!

It was erroneously stated in the Democrat lodge notices which appeared in the Wednesday Democrat that the regular meeting of the American Legion Post No. 342 would be tonight.

This is not a regular meeting night for the post and a meeting will not be held.

Post 342 holds its regular meetings on the second and fourth Thursday nights of each month.

Dog Trips Latch

LONGMONT, Colo., March 30—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Hafnter walked out of their house, then discovered they had left both house and car keys inside. All doors and windows were locked.

But Maisie their pet spaniel, was inside. Excitedly, she kept leaping up on the back door. Finally, she tripped the latch. The Hafners went back in for their keys.

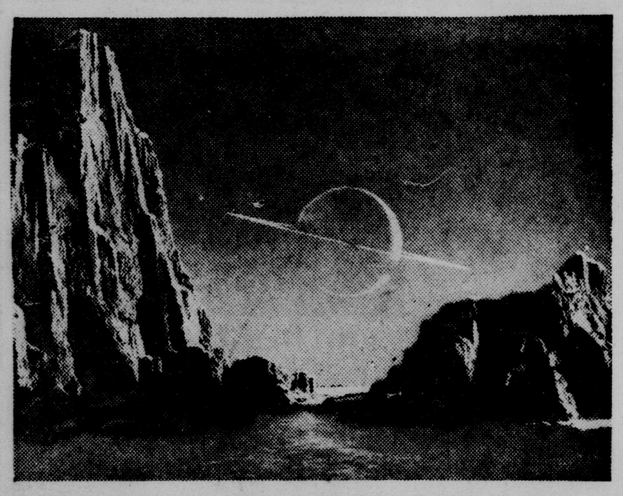
Inside Outer Space

A preview of conditions in outer space and on other planets in the solar system is being given to visitors at New York's Hayden Planetarium these days. A special show features paintings by Chesley Bonestell from the book, "Conquest of Space" (Viking). Here are a few of the scenes, which look ahead to the time when rocket flights to distant planets may be a matter of course.

Earth — viewed from a rocket 2,000 miles away.

Moon — in a valley with earth shining in distance.

Jupiter — from its innermost satellite, Jupiter V.



Saturn — with rings, seen from its satellite Titan.

Mars — as seen from Deimos, it s further moon.

Accident on Trip Back Home

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Redman, of Odessa, Tex., the latter a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wisdom of Lincoln, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. George Ray, of Platte City, Mo., were en route to their homes following a visit with relatives in the state of California, when they became involved in an automobile accident, which occurred on a highway near Wickenberg, Ariz., with both cars being demolished.

It is said the motor of one was dislodged and thrown about 50 feet down the highway, with the two occupants of that car losing their lives, and Mrs. George Ray died as a result of the accident about ten days later in an Arizona hospital. Mrs. Ray was the sister of Mr. Redman.

Mr. Ray, although seriously injured at the time of the accident, is reported as being in a satisfactory condition and has been taken to a hospital in Leavenworth, Kas. Mr. and Mrs. Redman were both taken to a hospital, where it was necessary for them to remain a few days, suffering from shock.

The body of Mrs. Ray was returned to Platte City last week and funeral services for her were held Sunday afternoon. After the funeral, Mrs. Redman and Mrs. Guy Neas, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wisdom of Lincoln journeyed on to the homes of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wisdom and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Neas, all of Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Neas left for their home at Odessa, Tex., Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Redman will remain for a longer visit.

HEADS INDIAN AFFAIRS— Dillon S. Myer of Falls Church, Va., above, has been appointed by President Truman to the job of taking care of America's Indians. Upon confirmation by the Senate, Myer will become commissioner of Indian affairs.

So far as known, there is no running water, no atmosphere, and no vegetation on the moon.

False Alarm Now Blows Its Own Horn

By NEA Service

NEWTON UPPER FALLS, Mass. —(NEA)—False alarms may soon be a thing of the past. Not because would-be false alarm turner-inners are turning over a new leaf, though. They may give up the practice because they can't stand the noise.

A new gadget, called the "Arhestolarm," is already being installed on fire boxes in many cities. When the lever is pulled to turn in an alarm, the box sets up a terrific clatter—a wailing, intermittent howl. The raucous noise attracts immediate attention in the vicinity of the box, and the person who pulled the lever is the center of all eyes.

The device is the latest in a series of products turned out by a company here which specializes in annoying noisemakers, principally for fire signal and detection equipment.

FRANK BRIDGES: The best signal is the most annoying.

Under Franw Bridges, chief engineer for the Gamewell Company, sound machines are devised with the express purpose of of being obnoxious. The main idea of any fire alarm system is to get attention fast, Bridges reasons, so the best signal is the one that is the most annoying.

Through tests, the company has learned that mere loudness isn't enough for an alarm horn for volunteer fire departments, for example. If tests are conducted with a group of sirens, rarely will two people agree on which horn is the loudest.

But generally they'll be in accord on which one was the most unpleasant to listen to. This psychological fact is therefore incorporated into alarm systems — they try to make the sound as unpleasant to the ear as possible.

Because of the volume of most sirens, they can't be tested indoors. If they were, the listeners would be in danger of losing their hearing. So the company's important sound testing laboratory is an outdoor affair.

The proving ground is a flat field, about a mile square. The flatness is necessary because even a slight raise would affect the sound waves and give an inaccurate measurement. Testing is never done on a windy day, either, because that would also play havoc with the sound waves.

The science of sound is a complex one. It involves many complicated phases. When discussing his noisemakers, for example, Bridges talks like this:

"In any natural sound, there is fundamental frequency of tone. In addition, each natural sound has harmonics or overtones. The overtones give a horn or musical instrument—or any other sound-making device, for that matter—its distinguishing quality.

"For example, a C-note played on a piano and on a violin has the same fundamental tone. Only the overtones enable the listener to distinguish one from the other."

The secret of making a noice obnoxious, Bridges explains, is to make the overtones approximtely equal in value to the fundamental tone. You may not completely understand that, but you'll get a more direct demonstration if you turn in a false alarm on a box equipped with his newest noisemaker.

New Secret Weapons Will Replace Some Types of Planes

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON.—The U.S. defense picture is so complicated that it's difficult even for Congressmen who sit on Army-Navy appropriations committees to understand whether the United States is in danger of slicing its defenses too thin. However, here are some facts which Senators may want to study in connection with General Eisenhower's views on national defense.

1. Secretary Louis Johnson has done a good job of cutting civilian personnel, political shipyards, old Indian ports, and other military "fat." Congressmen squawk loudest when local shipyards and military posts are curtailed, but Johnson has had the courage to cut anyway.

2. New weapons, which cannot be described here, may make a lot of present weapons obsolete. It's a waste of money, therefore, to accumulate an arsenal of conventional weapons which may be out of date in a year or so.

3. Regarding the Air Force, considered the nation's main striking arm, Secretary Johnson has not given the public a true picture of the facts. The real fact is that the Air Force is far behind the standard set for it by Congress.

Deceptive Figures

It should be recalled, of course, that it was President Truman, not Secretary Johnson, who flouted the congressional vote that the Air Force should be 70-groups strong. Johnson wanted 54 groups, but Truman cut to 48.

But perhaps because of super-loyalty to his chief, Johnson has not been frank with the nation regarding the real status of our air strength. Here is a case in point.

One of Johnson's most important statements on U.S. air strength was given to the press on Feb. 25, in order to give his friend, Arthur Krock, time to break the story in the New York Times.

In this statement, the Secretary of Defense claimed that Air Force personnel had now surpassed the figure of 401,000 men set for it in the Finletter report—the study made by Tom Finletter and other experts as to what our air strength should be.

When you scrutinize Johnson's statement carefully, however, you arrive at somewhat different facts. While it is true that Air Force personnel now totals 415,000 men, the Finletter figure of 401,000 men provided that ground services—repairs, upkeep of airfields, hangars, etc.—be done by the Army. Now the Air Force must furnish its own ground services, hence it needs more manpower.

Too Few B-36's

Johnson also told newsmen that the B-29 bomb groups had been doubled, thus giving the impression that the Air Force now has as many planes with 48 groups as it would have with 70 of the smaller groups. In other words, B-29 groups used to have 30 planes. Now, Johnson said, they have 60.

But the Secretary of Defense didn't give the whole story. He didn't explain, for instance, that 15 of the extra planes with each group of sixty are tankers. They fly along for refueling purposes, have no combat value. Furthermore each group has been authorized 20 tankers, though they have only 15. Moreover, the B-29s are fast becoming obsolete and are supposed to be replaced with B-50's. However, only one of the nine groups has actually been replaced with B-50's so far.

In addition to the B-29's, the Finletter report recommended 700 "very heavy" bombers. This referred to the prospective B-36, which at that time had not been tried and tested. "Only by using the very best equipment and the latest techniques will so small a force be able to carry effective war to the enemy," said the Finletter report, referring to the "very heavy" bombers.

Yet today the Air Force has only two groups of B-36's or slightly more than 60. One hundred and sixty more have been ordered. This, however, is a long way from the 700 "very heavy" bombers recommended in the Finletter report.

Public Needs Facts

Johnson also claims that under his economy program the Air Force will have 8,800 planes; with 1,252 more new planes in the fiscal year 1950, and another 1,383 new planes in the following year. But what the Secretary of Defense didn't explain was that these figures include trainers, transports, and all other types.

Actually the Air Force today has only 3,400 first-line planes. This is the hard, inescapable fact. Under the 70-group Air Force, on the other hand, as recommended by the Finletter report, it should have 6,869 first-line planes.

These are the facts regarding the nation's air strength. It may be that Secretary Johnson is right, and that in view of the rapid development of jets, rockets and other secret weapons, we should not spend too much money on planes which soon may become obsolete. That is a matter for the experts to judge.

Until they make up their minds, however, the country is entitled to know exactly what the defense picture is.

Merry-Go-Round

President Truman is considering a major foreign-policy speech to back up Secretary Acheson. . . . Oklahoma's Bible-quoting Sen. Dixiecrat Battle

A tough fight is shaping up to defeat Congressman Howard "Deacon" Smith of Virginia, a key figure of the "Dixie-GOP" coalition. Congressman Smith, who affects long, frock coats and a pious manner, represents George Washington's home town of Alexandria, and has been a constant thorn in the side of Democratic administrators since 1933.

Francis Pickens Miller, who has been stubbornly battling the well-entrenched Byrd machine, is now considering opposing Smith in the Democratic primary. Miller, a colonel on General Eisenhower's staff, had liberal and labor support in his unsuccessful try to be elected governor.

In Alexandria, which Smith failed to carry in his last race, Miller will probably have the energetic support of Armistead Boothe, leader of the "liberal bloc" in the general assembly, and the son of Gardner L. Boothe, Democratic chairman of the eighth district.

"Deacon" Smith's power is in the rural sections of Virginia where he professes to know the "pappies" and "granpappies" of every farm family.

NOTE—Smith's decision to run for an eleventh term was bad news to Harry F. Byrd, Jr., who had considered moving into the 8th district and running for Congress when Smith retired. Byrd, Jr., a chip off the old block, is in the state legislature.

Brake on Steel Pricing Would be Discriminatory

By Bruce Biossat

The Democratic majority of the Senate-House Economic Committee is on shaky ground in asking that the steel industry be required to give Congress 30 days' notice of proposed steel price increases.

The recommendation stemmed from a committee hearing into price hikes instituted last December. Before the inquiry began Senator O'Mahoney, committee chairman, voiced his conviction the increases were unwarranted. The industry contended they were necessary to cover higher costs resulting from new pension programs.

In its final report, the committee majority justified its call for notice on further price boosts on the ground that the steel industry exerts tremendous power and influence upon all parts of the U. S. economy.

"The great steel companies . . . are endowed with a degree of public interest far different from that which resides in the ordinary small business managed by a single proprietor," said the majority.

Steel's place at the core of the economy is unquestioned. But it is not the only basic industry affected with a public interest. To be sure, transportation, natural gas, electric power and other utilities already are under government rate-price regulation. But fundamental materials like coal, oil, lumber and other metals are not so controlled.

The logic of proposing to exercise a special vigilance over steel and not over these other basic materials is difficult to see.

The committee minority, led by Senator Taft, has properly tagged the majority's proposal as one leading toward government price control of steel. For, if Congress disapproves suggested price increases, what can it do to enforce its wishes but adopt legislation setting limits upon the industry's free exercise of its pricing function.

And if control is proper for steel, why isn't it equally wise for other basic products?

The nation has long since accepted the principle of rate regulation for public utilities. But before government sets any limits on the pricing powers of the major industries, the people should have a chance to understand what is at stake and to make known their own wishes.

Public control is a solution to be sought in a free society only after all other methods have failed. Our aim should always be to retain as wide an area of freedom as is consistent with the national welfare.

To turn quickly, almost unthinkingly, to government control as the answer is virtually to default on our responsibility to maintain freedom on this broad footing.

Price control should be among the last resorts. The primary job is to seek the soundest competitive conditions within steel and other industries. They should be allowed to do their own pricing in a healthy competitive atmosphere.

Let Congress today address itself to making sure real competition exists in our major industries. It would be justified in taking over one or more of these industries' chief functions only if they proved themselves wholly incapable of serving the public interest even when spurred to do their best in a free economy.

THE FEAR OF FAILURE

With all our fears and anxieties surrendered to God and our energies committed to constructive helpfulness to others, we are now in a position to look these particular fears and worries in the face and render them innocuous by a straight gaze. (12) Look at your worst fears one by one. You now dare look at them, for you have already looked at Christ, and you know that all these fears have the footprint of the Son of God on the back of their necks. They are half defeated in Him and are wholly defeated when you accept and act on the fact of their defeat.

(a) The fear of failure. A great many people go through life in bondage to success. They are in mortal dread of failure. Why should they be? Jesus cared little about success or failure. The story of Jesus is a story of apparent failure—rejected by His nation and crucified by the Romans, He ended on a cross. A faith that has a cross at its center cannot be a faith that worships success. I do not have to succeed; I have only to be true to the highest I know—success and failure are in the hands of God. On my way to India, I once said in England: "The romance of missions has gone out of me. I know what I'm up against. If you should say to me that I go back to India to see nothing but frustration and failure and that I would see no more fruit whatever, I would reply: "That is an incident. I have the call of God to India, and to be true to that call is my one business; success and failure are not my business—to be true is'." I made that statement one day in a meeting, and a minister came up and said: "All my life I've been in bondage to success; I've looked at everything from the success standpoint. You have released within me the greatest tensions of my life. I have only to be true, thank God."

"There is a lion in the way," says fear. But when you walk straight up to the lion of fear, he turns out to be a mouse of fact. Suppose you should fail. Is that so terrible? Not to have tried is a worse failure.

My Father, I've been afraid of failure. In fear of failure the self still lurks, afraid of what others will say. Forgive me that I've looked at the verdict of others, instead of at the verdict of Thy "Well done," as through failure and success I've been true to Thee. O help me to be true—I care for naught else. Amen.

Children, Like Animals, Have A Right to Humane Treatment

It shouldn't happen to a child—

To be dragged along a city street faster than his legs can comfortably take him.

To have grownups tell secrets in his hearing, shutting him out of the conversation by spelling, or talking in circles obviously meant to confuse him.

To have the confidences he has told his parents made public just to get a laugh from a bunch of grownups.

To be shamed by a parent in front of another child whose opinion is important to him.

To have the adult who hands him something as "Now what do you say?" before he has even a had a chance to say "Thank you"—or while his pleased smile is saying it for him.

To be punished for something without even being given a chance to explain just how or why that something has happened.

To be screamed at by any adult who has authority over him.

Some Dogs Have It Better

To be taken out for a good time and then not allowed to do anything he wants to do.

To be made to "clean up his plate" when he isn't hungry.

To have to tell every adult he meets how he likes school, and answer a few other standard adult-to-child questions.

To be kept up long after his bedtime because his parents are enjoying themselves and then be punished for being naughty when he is so tired he can't be good any longer.

To be punished for forgetting something, when his parents and other adults can get by with saying: "I'm terribly sorry—but it simply slipped my mind."

To say something in all earnestness and have a roomful of grownups find it terribly funny.

It shouldn't happen to a child—but how often it does.

FINGERPRINTS Don't Lie

By Rupert Hughes

Copyright 1950 by Rupert Hughes
Dist. by NEA SERVICE, INC.

XXVIII

FROM one of the first floor windows, Martin Queripel looked out into the great gardens of the late Wendell Palmer. He stretched his neck and peered around.

A long, high wall surrounded the acres of a small orchard of avocados, figs, almonds and flowering shrubs.

"This place was made for burglary," he told Police Detective James Stivers. "With all these trees and shrubs crowding right up to the walls there's perfect concealment. It's not even sporting enough for a self-respecting second-story man to try."

He leaned out farther, and motioned for Stivers to join him.

"Look down there, Stivers," he said. "It looks as if some bad sport had tried it—not a second-story man, perhaps, but some half-story worker."

Stivers craned his neck and saw footprints in the soft earth of the flower bed that ran along the walk. There were broken shrubs, as if someone had jumped up and caught the ledge of the window from which the police detective and the private detective looked out.

"He caught the ledge here," Queripel pointed out, "kicked about a little and hoisted himself. Yes—you can just see the smudges of the tips of his toes against the house wall."

"That's right! I see 'em!" Stivers chortled. "We could take a moulage impression of those footprints down there, and they'll be a big help in identifying the man who climbed in this window."

Queripel laughed softly: "They look like the big feet of a flattie, like Pete Kelso. Paul Moody has very small feet for so large a man."

Stivers added an item. "And I noted that when Moody walked into his studio just before we arrested him he had on tennis shoes. Those soles down there are wide and flat. I think I can just make out the design of a rubber heel."

They drew their heads back in the window and looked at each other with the glowing eyes of hounds on a fresh scent. Then Stivers' spirits fell.

"If he left any fingerprints on this window sill, he probably rubbed them off as he clambered in. And by sitting here, we've finished the work. But we'll try anyway."

HE dusted powder liberally over the broad sill and up along the sides of the casement, and went over it with his brushes. Here and there were little swirls of blurred patterns, but nothing nearly enough complete to serve.

Queripel knelt and pointed at the inner edge of the ledge.

"If he gripped this sill when he climbed in and over, the tips of his fingers ought to show right here."

In a new hope, Stivers threw powder on the under-side of the sill and brushed it with care while he kept a flashlight on the surface.

As subtly as night changes to dawn, as delicately as the stars slip through a fleeting fog, eight little clusters of patterns appeared delicately there. And they glowed like stars in Stivers' hungry eyes.

Pushing his camera close, the police detective photographed each of the four-print groups. Then he lifted them away on two tapes. Studying them, he said:

"I'd swear they're Kelso's. They're not Moody's certainly, and I studied Kelso's so carefully I think I remember them. Anyway, I'll see to it that he doesn't steal these. Now let's look for more."

They moved about cautiously. There was a table near the window and on its varnished surface their keen eyes found vague traces of touch. A little powder, a little brushwork, and there was the whole flat of a big right hand, a perfect palmprint, the whole length of the fingers with the tips under light pressure.

While Stivers was getting his camera ready to photograph it and his tapes ready for lifting and his labels for writing, Queripel drifted through the other room, the scene of the murder, hunting for what he might find.

Queripel was not looking for anything in particular, but he needed something more than he had in order to prove his theory that Pete Kelso had murdered Wendell Palmer.

And as usual, he found what he was looking for.

AS one will, in a house dark, untenanted and hushed with the spell of recent death, Queripel went on tiptoes with the stealth of a thief, with a silence like the passage of the ghost of the dead man if he were now revisiting, as Hamlet's father did, the scene of "the deep damnation of his taking-off."

Queripel was not the only one moving with a ghostlike tread; for, as he reached the door of the back room where Stivers was working, his eye was caught and carried across the hall by the slow opening of a door that plainly led down to the basement.

Martin Queripel fell back into the shadow of the heavy portieres which hung by the door, and saw to his consternation the dark and sullen face of an unknown man peer through the basement door.

The stranger looked about cautiously, then stepped softly into the hall and left the door open behind him.

The intruder seemed uncertain as to which way to turn first; then he moved along the hall, toward the library where Wendell Palmer's body had been found. He froze as the sudden loud and joyous voice of Detective James Stivers rang through the air.

"Kelso!" Stivers cried.

The Doctor Says—

Personal Cleanliness is First Step in Warding Off Lice

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

During the war there was a tenfold increase in the number of people who acquired head lice, or pediculosis capitis. The increased crowding of the cities and war areas in many sections of the United States, as well as the even worse conditions in certain foreign countries, was probably responsible. This is better now but correspondents tell me that lice have not yet entirely deserted us!

Besides thhe discomfort and embarrassment of having lice, there is real danger involved. Several diseases are carried by lice and the more people have them the more risk there is of spreading those diseases.

Some people seem to have a special attraction for lice. It is known that lice will leave the bodies of those who are less attractive to them for others.

There are several kinds of lice which may infest human beings. Most of them prefer the human scalp except for the so-called "crab louse," which goes to the groin.

The principal methods of control are prevention of infestation and treatment of the unfortunate person who has acquired this vermin. Personal cleanliness is the most important part of prevention. There is no doubt that bathing in warm water and the use or soap at least once a week, together with frequent changes into clean clothing, reduces the chances of acquiring lice. Crowding acts to spread louse infestation. In enlarging crowded communities these vermin are frequently found even among clean families.

In the past treatment was often difficult because the substances which poisoned lice did not always work and their applications took a great deal of time and work on the part of the patient. Now, partly as a result of experience learned during the war, there are several very satisfactory methods of eliminating lice from the human body.

DDT Effective

These newer methods include the use of DDT powder, a substance known as benzyl benzoate, and for body lice a kind of bomb made up of what is called freon pyrethrum, which can be sprayed over the entire body in a few seconds providing a suitable place for use is available. In order to make any of these treatments successful, however, it is important to follow directions closely and in the case of head lice, to guard against injuries to the eyes.

Lice lay eggs, or nits, on the body. These hatch in about seven days. The nits are not destroyed by most treatments, so that they must usually be taken care of by repeating treatments after they have hatched.

The female louse lays from 50 to 150 eggs a day and the average louse will live for from 30 to 40 days. We could part from this insect companion of man without regrets.

Dr. Jordan will answer questions from his readers in a special column once a week. Watch for it.

For A Short Bob: Self Scissoring

A sharp pair of scissors and a simple technique provide the pattern for home hair-cutting. The first step (upper left) is parting off hair one inch square at the scalp. Next, taper one strand at a time with scissors held with thumb and third finger. The best practice is to trim hair slightly longer than the wanted length. To cut bangs (lower left), taper them first and trim edges into a straight line. The result (above) is a successful short snip.

Checks highlight this trim little rayon-wool suit with norfolk jacket and box-pleated skirt.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The smartest kindergarten fashion-plates will be decked out for their Easter egg hunt in pint-sized versions of the high styled togs their mothers will wear for promenading.

As popular with little girls as with their moms are the starchy white accents of collars and cuffs to set off suits and coats; pleats to flare a skirt or give freedom of motion in a straight-cut coat; and bloused belted jackets for suits.

Spring navy meets competition as a color favorite in pastels such as candy pink, apple green, robin's egg blue and dusty rose. Even checks and plaids are scaled down in size to make sporty togs for pram row.

Ensembled with several of the new fashions are matching felt bonnets and rollers.

'An Ironing Tip' Is Club Topic

The Dresden Homemakers Club met Tuesday, March 21, at the home of Mrs. C. E. Ferguson, with Mrs. C. E. Ferguson with Mrs. J. E. Farris and Mrs. C. M. Ferguson as assistant hostesses.

After a contributed dinner at the noon hour the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Louis Bickle.

The devotional was led by Mrs. T. B. Wood.

The club voted to make a donation to the Red Cross and to buy flowers for the graduates at graduation time in April at the Community hall in Dresden.

A demonstration, "Choosing Clothes Suitable to the Individual," was given by Mrs. Charles Fichter and Mrs. A. B. Cook.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Charles Fichter led the group in an interesting game.

The April meeting will be at the community hall in Dresden for the afternoon at which hostesses will be Mrs. Mamie Gentry, Mrs. L. J. May and Mrs. W. S. Manley.

Roll call will be answered with "The Flowers I Like Best and How to Take Care of It."

Tin Price Cut Hits Exporters

BANGKOK—(AP)—A decline of world tin prices has severely hit Siamese tin exporters. Tin dealers who sold tin to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation when the price was $1.03 per pound and received advances of 85 per cent now find they have to make refunds because the price is down to 74½ cents.

The R.F.C. makes its purchases on the consignment basis paying at the price ruling 30 days after arrival of the shipment at Galveston, Texas. Shipments from Bangkok take about two months in transit.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — The University of Arkansas is sure Guard Theron Roberts will make some of the "all" teams this fall.

Roberts didn't play a minute last year because of a pre-season knee injury, but the coaches gave him honorable mention on the All-Southwest conference squad.

Footnotes on Shoes With the Proper Fit

More flattery and greater comfort afoot are promised when shoes are selected to suit foot type as this girl does. Close-ups show typical examples of new styles recommended for the four basic types of feet.

By Alicia Hart
NEA Staff Writer

Ever been stuck with a pair of new shoes that looked wonderful but hurt your feet after a few hours wear? If you have, chances are you bought shoes "to fit the eye" instead of your foot. It's common feminine failing, foot specialists say.

With so many styles to choose from, you can find shoes that are both smart and comfortable if you stick to the last that suits your foot. The specialists classify foot types as high instep, low instep, long and narrow, and short and plump.

If your foot has a high arch, you won't be happy in high-cut pumps that pinch delicate instep nerves and restrict circulation. Better choice for you, according to podiatrists, are low-cut models which leave the instep free of constricting bindings. The d'Orsay pump, shell shoe, open sandals are good designs for this foot type. Look for a snug heel fit to make up for the lack of shoes in front.

On the other hand, if you have low-arched feet, you'll find high-walled slippers or one-strap sandals more comfortable than the wide-open styles. The shoes should be cut high around the back to avoid any tendency to slip or bulge at the heel. Check to make sure shoes have flexible leather soles for easy walking.

Lucky is the girl who has long narrow feet. Specialists say she can wear many shoe styles with ease. New nude sandals are particularly flattering to slender feet. Straps across the instep or too-thin soles, however, may cause discomfort because of the lack of a fatty cushion on the arch and bottom of the thin foot. For that reason, shoes with leather-soled platforms, either concealed or visible, are recommended as shock absorbers.

Give plump feet plenty of space at the toes of the shoes to avoid painful cutting. Any style with a walled last that has a roomy front is a good choice. The square toe and complementing square leather sole are made to order for comfortable wearing on plump feet.

This plastic window shade won't crack, shrink or fade and can be wiped clean with a damp cloth.

Fancy Dresser

Benjamin Franklin was a fancy dresser. The Massachusetts Historical Society headquarters has displayed a suit he wore in Paris, made of lilac poplin with cuffs of pleated lawn.

The coffee surplus problem of Brazil sometimes is solved by using it to fire railroad engines.

Beware of extra-high heels. Spike heels intensify the tendency of short plump feet to roll over at the ankles. This causes ankle strain and is apt to produce an awkward walk.

Prefer White Pills

BUFFALO, N.Y. —(AP)— Americans in taking medicines, prefer white pills over all other colors. Next in preference comes various shades of red. People in other countries are partial to louder colors in their pills.

So reports Albert Marthaler, color expert for the Arner Co., a large drug producing firm. In 32 years, he estimates he has directed the coloring of 29 billion pills and tablets of some 2,160 shades and tints. The public, he adds, is sensitive to the slightest change from the color they're used to in various pills they buy. Pills are colored by spraying them with certified food colors, and then are polished in big tumbling drums.

Franz Liszt once publicly rebuked the szar of Russia for daring to talk while the great musician was playing.

The U. S. Bureau of Mines has revealed that a new type continuous gasifier, for use in the process of making synthetic liquid fuels from coal, has passed a full-scale test successfully. The new type gasifier does not require the use of coking coals.

McKENNEY Answers Your CANASTA Questions

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Written for NEA Service

I like the explanation on when to discard wild cards given by Walter L. Richard in his book entitled "How to Play Canasta From Beginner to Expert." Mr. Richard is secretary of the National Canasta Laws Commission, which I helped to form some time ago so that the laws of Canasta would become standardized. He has always been interested in laws, and previously wrote "Complete Gin-Rummy Including Oklahoma" and "Complete Backgammon."

In his Canasta book Mr. Richard has the following to say about discarding wild cards:

"The discarding of a wild card freezing the discard pile is generally a defensive play, making it more difficult for the opponents to take the discard pile and allowing you and your partner to dispose of cards that would otherwise benefit them. Discarding a wild card is one of the most vital parts of the game and may possibly win or lose the entire game in one hand; the following pointers should be carefully studied and remembered.

"It is generally advisable not to discard a wild card to freeze the discard pile without having a minimum of 4 definitely safe discards in your hand. (A definitely safe discard is a black three; a wild card or a 7th or 8th card matching the opponents' melds on the table or in the discard pile.)

"It is of the utmost importance to find out how many cards your opponents and your partner have in their hands before discarding a wild card to freeze the discard pile. If you and your partner's combined hands contain considerably more cards than your opponents' and you have several cards that are of the same rank as your opponents' melds, then discard a wild card. Do not do so should the opponents' total of cards greatly outnumber your and your partner's cards.

"Should the opponents have a canasta and two or three melds of 5 or 6 cards, discard a wild card if you have one, in order to freeze the discard pile, rather than discard a card with which your opponent might procure the discard pile. You can then safely discard cards that your opponent could add to his melds which he now in all likelihood cannot pick up.

"If you pick up a discard pile of size containing several pairs and also 5 cards of the same rank, meld only 3 of these cards, and, if possible, discard a wild card and freeze the discard pile.

"When your opponents have made several melds and have few cards left in their hands, by discarding a deuce and freezing the discard pile, you reduce their chances of getting the discard pile.

"When you only have a deuce and several odd cards in your hand which match your opponents' melds, you are in what is called a 'squeeze'; discard your wild card first. This will enable you undoubtedly to dispose of the other cards safely, as the discard pile will be frozen."

Mr. McKenney is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Typical of the new patterns lace is tracing in spring fashions is the sun costume (left), designed by Branell in navy blue cotton lace which overlays white pique to make the full-skirted dress and tiny bolero. Sun top bodice is bordered in white pique, bow-tied in front. Dramatic afternoon dress (right), designed by Marinelli, plays fragile black silk Chantilly lace against stark white linen.

Lace stiffened by net backing forms stand-up collar, bodice inset and borders white linen petals on the skirt. Straw lace shapes up into a youthful bowler designed by Mr. John with a star-pointed brim and a black velvet ribbon tie around the crown. White cotton lace stands out in bold relief against the red satin background of the sash. Lace is no longer confined to formal affairs.

New Models in Convertibles

Everybody wants a convertible! Everybody loves the free and easy look . . . the feel of luxury that is indicative of convertible styling. Fashion places great emphasis on convertibles for dress, casual and sportswear.

You see these streamlined accents in the sweater tubes, strapless blouses, halter-neckline shirts and dressed up tee shirts and middy jackets that go blithely from skirt to slacks to shorts!

With strapless and decollete frocks an important part of the entire fashion picture . . . you'll want to convert them for any occasion wear with a bright scarf . . . a mantle-type stole . . . a sparkling-bright jacket.

"Slip" dresses with long or short coats become appropriate for the dressiest occasions as the topper slips off.

Yes, it's a great season for conversion . . . a great season for convertibles with cool tops that quickly adapt themselves to changing scenes, changing temperatures, with quick cover-up tricks!

Singapore Has Water Shortage

SINGAPORE —(AP)— Economy measures introduced by the Municipal Water Department have saved 700,000 gallons a day. But the water position still remains critical. Huge pipes convey water from the reservoir at Pontian, some 30 miles from Singapore, on the west coast of Johore.

As part of the campaign to conserve fresh water, 300,000 gallons a day have been saved by substituting salt water for the flushing of drains, cleaning of markets and general purposes.

1950 Floor Coverings Stress High Style; and High Value for New Lower Prices

Despite skyrocketing costs of raw materials, homemakers will see greater values in floor coverings during 1950! Technical advances in the industry make possible the weaving of rugs and carpets at a cost believed impossible a few years ago.

New carved type and textured carpets in the medium price range will delight the average shopper. Emphasis will be placed on high style carpet retailing between $8 and $11 per square yard.

In medium-priced carved carpets, graceful leaf designs for both informal and traditional furnishings will prove most popular. The use of heavy 3-ply yarns in combination with 2-ply monesque yarns create a pile depth and texture usually associated only with more expensive carpeting. Predominating colors will be gray, green, rose, and beige to harmonize with all decorating schemes.

Outstanding in the lower price range is an Early American hook pattern which offers all the quaintness of hand-hooked rugs of Colonial days.

New 18th century florals with a modern flair are proving exceptionally popular wherever shown One combines gray and beige for a contemporary background while another unusual effect is achieved with a jet black ground with panels in gray and top colors in keeping with today's home fashions.

While grey, green, rose and beige lead the carpeting color parade, they are closely followed by chocolate brown and deep forest green.

In the high fashion field, a trend to the muted colors is discernible. Ceramic blue is assuming new importance because of its subtlety for today's informal decor as well as its quality of refinement for more traditional periods.

Bonnets For Spring

Handbags Set For '20 Revival

Smaller, smoother fabric-ed handbags are at hand this Spring of 1950 to pay smart homage to your new slimlined fashions.

With the "1920 in 1950" look of fashion this Spring, the envelope bag has appeared again. A perfect foil for wrapped coats and shorter length sleeves, this Spring's envelope bag will be slimmer than ever and if it has a handle the handle will be a small one, lying flat on the top of the bag.

Box bags, youthful looking and roomy enough to hold all the many necessary purse accessories; slim, controlled pouch bags with narrow tophandles; shoulder strap bags that are shorter and lie close to the silhouette and spectator bags, made in contrasting tones to pair off with spectator shoes, will all be available for a right fashion choice this season.

Patent leather, either the genuine or plastic type, promises to be the leading handbag fabric for Spring. Along with it smooth calfskin and deerskin finished cowskin will be the featured fabrics in handbag designs.

The soft neutral brown family tones will be featured this Spring in Balenciaga for dressy wear and blonde for more casual occasions.

ACCENT ON BUTTONS!

This year, buttons dominate the fashion scene.

Buttons are everywhere! Accenting scissor panels, sweeping up daring back slits of skirts, dramatizing new nubby woolens of coats and jackets, glittering on the narrow straps of chemise dresses. Buttons are an integral part of every chic costume.

The woman who makes her own clothes will capture the feeling of a small child let loose in a candy store when she visits a button department. Variety, glamour and abundance mark the button collections.

There are burnished straw buttons from the Caribbean and Orient designed to match the straw bags which will be prevalent this Spring and Summer. Tanned leathers from the plains of Argentina and Texas to place on wool knits and rough tweeds and to add a touch of originality to simple leather gloves.

Polished woods from the Northwest forests add an expensive custom-made note to gabardines, jerseys and wools. Sparkling jewels from Europe and Africa give stunning accent to chiffons, crepes, wools.

Chinese Bonds Used As Club

HONG KONG — (AP) — Arrivals from Peiping say the Chinese Communists use their Victory bonds to club "uncooperative" citizens. They give this case as typical:

A Chinese educator was asked to write an anti-American article for the Communist press. The educator had lived in the United States. The educator asked to be excused. He didn't feel qualified.

Two days later he was informed the quoto of Victory bonds he was required to buy had been set. The Quota was about twice what he was worth. He had to sell his home and most of his personal property to meet the quota.

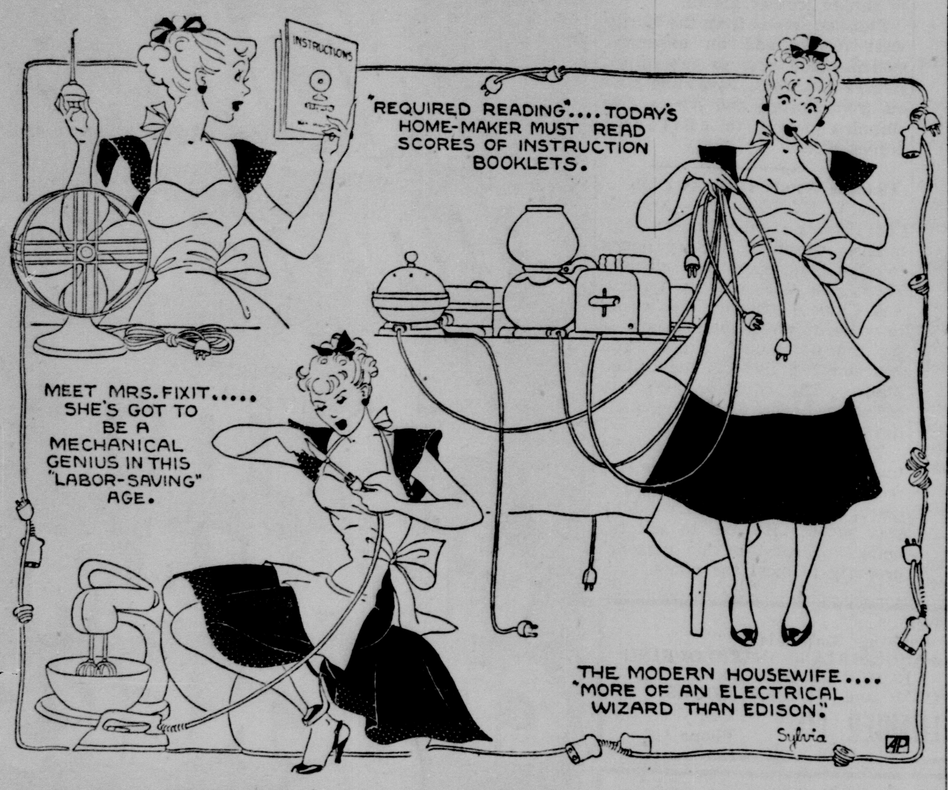
NEEDED: Kitchen Mechanics



By DAVID G. BAREUTHER
AP Newsfeature Writer

To be a successful housekeeper, the modern housewife is obliged to be somewhat more of an electrical wizard than Thomas Alsa Edison was at the time he invented the electric light.

Modern households can be so packed with new electrical and other gadgets that a woman is expected to know more about mechanical maintenance than any man needs to know about his automobile.

A man can usually pull in at the nearest service station when something goes haywire under the hood of his car.

But a housewife is alone and on her own with a veritable Frankenstein monster, which inventors have jokingly nicknamed the "labor saving" house.

It may save physical labor, all right, but when it comes to mental labor—ask your wife.

Matching her wits against the best brains among advertising men and salesmen, she is expected to be able to accommodate on a breakfast table more gleaming chromium and glass equipment than any ordinary table was intended

There could be, for instance, an electric coffee maker, an automatic toaster on a tray with conserves, an electric egg cooker, a bacon grill, an electric fruit juicer, a wafle iron with tray for batter, an electric biscuit warmer, a radio, a table lamp, and in season, an electric fan—and if there still is room for a husband and some children—perhaps an electric cigarette lighter and electric clock would be handy.

From this miniature breakfast factory, which today's bride knows how to run and keep in working order, she moves into a larger plant—something her grandmother never would have recognized as a kitchen.

Table scraps are dumped right into the sink to be washed down into an electric garbage disposer. All dishes go into an automatic dishwasher, where they'll be soaper, rinsed and dried till they glisten. The butter goes back into a special butter-conditioning compartment in the refrigerator, where a temperature control keeps it from getting too hard to spread.

The food freezer is checked to see if there will be anything to order when the butcher calls on the kitchen phone. There are chops and steaks galore—and that big roast that was bought at a sale two weeks ago.

And sure enough there is plenty of ice cream in case the girls drop in for the afternoon. If they want chocolate malteds, there's the electric mixer with its drink-stirring attachment like a soda fountain's.

The modern wife can do more things with an electric mixer than some men can do with a whole tool chest. Deftly Deftly changing attachments, she beats up cakes, sharpens knives, juices oranges, whips potatoes, polishes silverware, chops hamburger, makes candy and what not.

None of those old hairpin and cheming gum expedients are used in all this kitchen magic. Today's boys who grow up to be mechanics will learn a lot from their mothers. The ladies know how to mesh the thread on a bolt, how much of a load the electric circuit will carry, how to replace a blown-out fuse and where to turn off the current when they want to splice an electric cord.

Making one trip back to the breakfast table, they whisk off the linen and drop it into an automatic laundry machine where it is washed, wrung and dried to the right degree for zipping through an electric ironer.

The roast for dinner is placed in an electric oven. A clock it set to start the meat to cook at the right time and automatically turn it off when it is done.

A kitchen television may demonstrate something like stuffed brussels sprouts, which the housewife follows handily while she flicks a switch to start the kitchen exhaust blower to carry off the fumes.

You'd think with all these wheels going around a girl would have to be a grease-monkey to make a success of her marriage. Not at all. Most modern motors and bearings are permanently lubricated. The sealed-in mechanism of a washing machine, for example, may be guaranteed for five yeras without service. (The writer has a mechanical refrigerator that has been running steadily for 13 years without service of any kind.)

Most home cooling fans, however, call for regular motor oil at the end of a year—and reoiling for each 1,000 hours of use thereafter. But over-oiling can be as bad as under-oiling, and the use of thin household oils can ruin a motor. Automobile crackcase oil is the best.

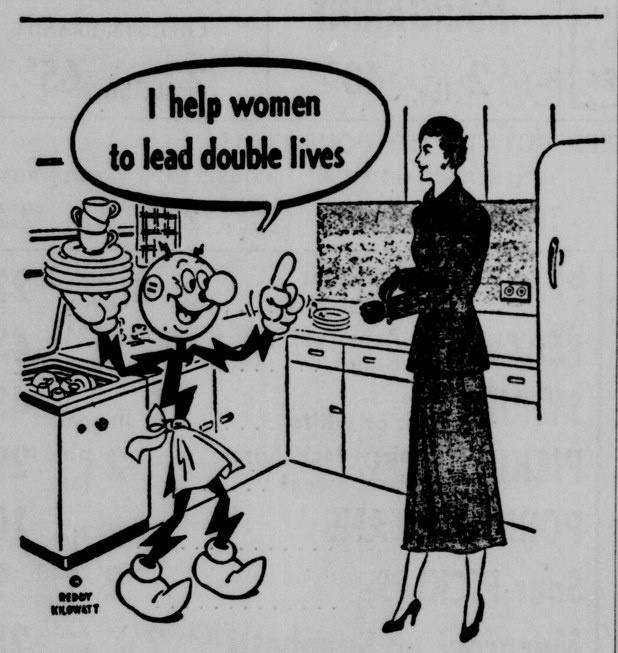
Simple as such maintenance may sound, though, there is plenty for the housewife to know. If all the instruction booklets that come with each item of equipment in the average household, were bound in one cover, they'd form a book as fat as a heavy novel.

And the girls take these boklets seriously, too. After all, any piece of modern equipment costs a pretty penny and its worth taking care of. The booklets about the kitchen gadgets make it all very interesting with recipes and you have to know how to adjust a set-screw in order to make these delicacies.

Even the vacuum cleaner books are packed with helpful hints, such as how to use the contraption to de-moth a closet, dry your hair, or transform the thing into a paint sprayer. Before you can get the bill paid the wive knows how to replace the brushes, change the pilot light, and use the attachments to clean picture moldings and glass curtains.

'APPOINTED ROUNDS' IN DALLAS— Postman Charles H. Bolton holds Jane Boyd up to get the family mail from this turn-style carrier in a housing project at Dallas, Tex.

HOW TO TAKE A NEWSPICTURE—News photographers trample one another at the door of a U. S. marshal's van in New York to make pictures of Valentin Gubitchev on the way to prison after he and Judith Coplon had been convicted of espionage conspiracy.



TODAY many women are finding it both profitable and pleasant to lead double lives. One of those lives is spent in the business world. The other is spent in the home in the role of a model homemaker. Part of the secret of successfully filling this dual role is in taking full advantage of Reddy Kilowatt's helpful services.

All around the house Reddy takes much of the work out of housework. He's an expert chef who cooks complete meals automatically. His perfect refrigeration protects your food and saves shopping trips. He keeps plenty of hot water ready for refreshing baths and a hundred and one other uses. Even the family's washing is done without toil and muss at the turn of a dial. And now washing dishes — voted by women to be the most disagreeable household task of all — can be entrusted to Reddy Kilowatt. All of these chores and many more can be turned over to your dependable electric servant who works for low wages.

Whether you lead two lives or are a full time homemaker, Reddy Kilowatt releases you from household drudgery . . . gives you more free time for work or play.

OLD IRONPANTS—This robot motorcycle rider stole the show at the Frankfurt, Germany, spring fair. Modern Kitchen Arrives in France; But Frankly, It's Too Many Francs

By Rosette Hargrove
NEA Staff Correspondent

WARIS — The modern kitchen, complete with such labor saving gadgets as the washing machine and a combination vacuum cleaner and mayonnaise mixer, has come to France.

For the first time since the war, the home appliances that are everyday living in America are now readily available for the French housewife. The hitch is in the price tag.

Even for wives in the middle-income bracket, the purchase of a vacuum cleaner, washing machine and refrigerator is as far beyond possibility today as the acquisition of a diamond bracelet.

The Ideal Home Exhibition in Paris this year ran four weeks and drew crowds of starry-eyed women. Most of them went away still dreaming, but without buying.

The lack of sales does not mean the French housewife still is content to polish her floors with a brush attached to her foot, to beat carpets, dust and do the family wash entirely by hand. Neither does she consider it a happy tradition to market every day because she has no refrigerator. In the old days, when domestic labor was cheap and plentiful, nobody cared because even a family of moderate means could afford a maid. Today that's an expensive luxury.

And for most householders, even a $185 washing machine is a similar luxury, since it represents more than two months' salary for the average wage earner.

A French-made refrigerator also costs about $185 (U.S. makes are three times higher in France). A vacuum cleaner can be bought for $55. If you add an electric water heater and a few other labor saving appliances such as a mixer, toaster and coffee grinder, the total bill represents almost the yearly salary of the white collar worker.

There is some hope for the dreaming housewives, however. Along with plenty of appliances for sale in the shops, installment buying has been resumed for the first time since the war, which points to a renewed confidence in the franc.

The official Family Allowance organization is going along with the idea, too. It has announced it will advance householders the full purchase price of a washing machine, to be deducted from allocations at the rate of $4 a month.

The Geiger counter, famed for its ability to detect uranium and other radioactive materials, has been adapted to the development of a quick and accurate method of analyzing steel samples by scientists.

Food Flavor Booster

NORTH ARLINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—A new flavor-booster for foods has been developed by Dr. Walt Phillips of the Phillips scientific laboratories here. It brings out the natural flavor in milk, hot chocolate, fruit juices, soups, vegetables, meats, alcoholic and non-alcoholic drinks, he says. The booster is a natural vegetable product, and is added or mixed to food or drink at the rate of one drop for an eight-ounce serving.

Death of a Hippo Herd

(NEA Telephotos)

When nature's cycle of weather is disrupted, man builds dams, constructs irrigation projects and calls on scientists for rain making experiments. But lower creatures are helpless before the whims of clouds and wind and heat. In the Rift valley in Tanganyika, Africa, lies shallow Lake Rukwa, source of physical needs to a herd of hippopotami. Life became a desperate struggle for the hippos when, for two years, the rain didn't fall and Lake Rukwa's 12 feet of water gradually dried. A photographer came upon the scene shown in these photos when the hippopotami failed in their final bid to live in the ooze and slime. The rains came this winter — and covered the skeletons of the beasts. The top photo shows living hippos huddled with their dead mates trapped in muddy ooze, too weak to struggle from the muddy trap. Along a 50-mile stretch of shore, the photographer counted 50 dead beasts without searching. In the struggle for a few mouths of leaves and dry grass, this hippo in the bottom photo has struggled to the dried shore miles away and on the way back to the muddy ooze has collapsed in the searing heat.

Huge Helicopter Wheeled Into Open

A massive new twin-jet helicopter, designated the XH-17, is rolled into the open at the Hughes aircraft plant at Culver City, Calif., for static testing. Believed designed to lift heavy loads such as a tank or field gun, the craft is equipped with extremely wide rotor blades. This picture was made from a highway on a nearby hillside by photographer Robert Jakobsen of the Los Angeles Times with a 40-inch telephoto lens. (AP Wirephoto)

Cloves Take No. 2 Place In Zanzibar

ZANZIBAR —(AP)— Cloves and clove oil took a secondary spot in Zanzibar's trade last year for the first time in the island's history. The island off the east African coast has been the world center for cloves for centuries.

Coconut products took the number one position in 1949 in a total export trade of nearly $6,000,000.

NEW NECKLINE—Holy Year influence is seen in the unusual neckline of Christian Dior's onionskin taffeta afternoon dress, with its enormous cowl-collar of starched white handkerchief linen. A black chiffon tie breaks severity of the collar, and dress is finished with a full, gathered skirt and long, narrow sleeves. The creation was seen in the Paris spring fashion show.

NEATLY PLEATED — Jean Patou's pleated georgette blouse, done in a cool lime green, is gathered into a flattering ruff at the throat and held in place by a navy grosgrain tie. The blouse, with self-buttons across each shoulder, was included in Patou's creations shown at the Paris spring fashion show.

Here's the tenth of 12 lesson articles that will show you how to do the basic square dancing steps and some of the advanced figures. Later articles will refer back to earlier lessons, so save them all for future reference

The two figures at left and center are usually done by large circle sets, rather than squares, although they can be done by square sets, too.

The "California Fruitbasket" (left) is a fairly intricate maneuver, but once you've seen it done, it's easy. The ladies move to the center of the circle, and join hands. The men join hands in a large outside circle. Throughout this figure, the hands remain joined. The ladies move to the left and the men to the right (top diagram). The ladies stop on call, and the men retrace their steps pntil they stand just to the left of their own partners (bottom diagram.

Then the men raise their arms and, still keeping hands joined, lower them in front of the ladies, making one circle (see sketch). They all circle, according to the call, and then the men raise their arms and lower them behind the girls. The girls, in turn, raise their arms and lower them behind the men's backs, again making one circle. They circle right or left as the caller directs, and drop hands and swing their corner ladies at the caller's words.

The "open tunnel" (center) begins with the couples promenading counter-clockwise (upper diagram). The couple designated by the caller stops when told to do so, (drops its hands and turns around, toward each other, to face the oncoming couples. They join inside hands and lift them to form an arch (sketch) and they move back in a clockwise direction as the other dancers duck underneath. As each couple ducks underneath it follows the head couple in making an arch and retracing its steps. And the head couple, once it has cleared all the others, returns to promenading counter-clockwise and ducking underneath the others. When all the couples have gone through the open tunnel, they promenade back to their home position.

The "sweep the floor" step (at right) is a simple operation. From a promenade, the man drops to his left knee, still holding the lady's right hand. The lady moves around in front of him, then behind him and back to his original position. The hands remain joined throughout the step.

For the third consecutive year, a pair of trumpeter swans, one of the rarest and most elusive birds in America, are nesting in a marsh adjoniing a mountain lake in Yellowstone national park. The bird is extremely shy and usually stays away from human haunts, but this one pair apparently prefers civilization.

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

INITIATION into the Ku Klux Klan, complete with hooded, white-robed figures, fiery cross and American flag, makes this striking scene, taken near Atlanta in the early Twenties. The fearsome, night-riding Klan was born in the South following the Civil War, first as a social organization, then as a terroristic force devoted to "white supremacy." It was reborn in 1915 under a fiery cross on Stone Mountain, near Atlanta, as a body of "100 per cent Americans, white and Protestant, aimed at purifying the social and political life of this country." Nurtured on hate, the Klan grew to power in national politics, even elected governors. From a claimed membership of 9,000,000 members in 1925, it has alternately withered and bloomed, but never died.

Lions Hosts To Balanced Farm Group

Prof. C. R. Meeker In Address At Dinner Meeting

The Sedalia Lions club members were hosts to the Pettis county Balanced Farming association in a dinner meeting in the ambassador room of the Bothwell hotel Wednesday evening. The session was presided over by the Lions president A. W. Haller. Program chairman for the evening was Carl Urban.

Merle Vaughan, assistant county agent, introduced the speaker of the evening, Professor C. R. Meeker, extension specialist in farm management at the University of Missouri College of Agriculture.

The speaker told of the important connection between the business men of a community and farmer of the county. he said that the business men would be investing their time well if they were to go to the farms of the county and attempt to learn more about the balanced farming program.

Professor Meeker said that he questioned the assumption that food is too expensive. He said that an hour's wages in the United States could buy more food than any place else in the world; except perhaps Australia.

Ways To Improve

There are many ways to improve agriculture, said the speaker. The farmers and the business men must work hand in hand to solve their many problems that threaten their production and their very existence.

According to Meeker the Missouri Balanced Farming program is progressing well and the business men of the state have been instrumental in its success. He said that the progress of the program has been a great task and the final fruits of this program will be realized when the farmer and the business men come through with close cooperation.

Expresses Appreciation

Following the address by Mr. Meeker, C. S. Arnold, president of the Pettis County Farm Bureau expressed the gratitude of the association and himself for having the opportunity to meet with the business men of Sedalia and in having their companionship in their farming problems.

Other business affairs of the Lions were discussed and the meeting was adjourned by the president.

Into Huddle On Plans For Shifts

KEY WEST, Fla., March 30—(AP)—President Truman went into a huddle Wednesday with retiring Secretary of Army Gray while he worked on plans for a major shifts in his administration.

White House officials said plans include:

1. Strengthening of the national security resources board by the appointment of Secretary of the Air Force Symington to the long-vacant chairmanship.

2. Appointment of Budget Director Frank Pace, Jr., as secretary of the Army.

3. Promotion of Frederick J. Lawton, 49-year-old Washington, D. C., career officer, from assistant to director of the budget.

4. Appointment of Thomas K. Finletter, former ECA chief in London and author of the "Finletter report" on air policy as secretary of the Air Force.

Gray, who is resigning soon to accept the presidency of the University of North Carolina, flew down from Washington.

Before flying back to Washington, Gray informed reporters his discussion with the President was confined "strictly to departmental affairs." He said that pending appointments did not come up, and that there will be no change in his plans to take over the university presidency.
